ARMADA WILL AWE ZELAYA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The grimmest naval display that the United States has made since the war with Spain will soon be knocking at the doors of Zelaya, the Nicaraguan despot, with a demand for $100,000 indemnity and full apologies for the execution of Groce and Cannon, the young Americans w[h]o were shot because they incurred Zelaya's displeasure.

This is believed in well informed quarters here to-day, as the program outlined by Secretary of State Knox and to have been approved by President Taft.

Assistant Secretary of State Wilson to-day denied the report that the Government intends demanding $100,000 indemnity and a full apology. He said:

"Such a report is entirely erroneous. The situation remains exactly where it was last Sunday night, for the reason that not a single reply has been received by the State Department to the inquiries made regarding the execution of Groce and Cannon. I am at a loss to explain this delay. Our information should have been forthcoming some time ago."

Zelaya's Plight Desperate.

Action will be prompt and stern. It is believed that all the essential orders have been issued to the Navy Department and transmitted to the cruisers and gunboats now in Nicaraguan waters or speeding there, as was as to the various navy yards and marine offices with regard to a supplemental force to back up the ships already sent.

Zelaya's plight is viewed by military authorities here to-day as desperate. Estrada's forces for more than a week have had the greater part of the administration forces penned up, and now in addition to the program mapped out by the United States comes the news that the Pacific side of Nicaragua has been invaded by a band equipped arms, recruited from Honduras and Salvador, who already have taken two towns and to whom the inhabitants are flocking by hundreds, anxious to avail themselves of the chance to war against the tyranny of Zelaya.

The internal situation of the republic alone would assure the speedy downfall of Zelaya and his adherents, while the action in progress by the United States is not thought to leave him a fighting chance.

Consult "Rebel" Representative.

The State officials here are reported to-day to have taken the unprecedented action of consulting Senor Salvador Castrillo, representing the provisional government of General Estrada, although the existence of that government was not yet been recognized by the United States nor has Castrillo been accorded any official status. Senor Castrillo is familiar with every inch of Nicaraguan territory, knows Zelaya's resources and dispositions, and in the long conferences he has had with W. T. S. Doyle, acting chief of the Latin-American bureau, he is reported to have supplied information upon which a campaign could most advantageously be waged.

Secretary Meyer of the Navy has ar-

BLOW FROM BOARD KILLS CARPENTER

Fred Lantz of No. 90 Hudson street, Somerville, a carpenter, was almost instantly killed to-day while at work in the John Hancock Building, being constructed at Devonshire and Franklin streets.

One of the workmen on the fourth floor dropped a piece of wooden flooring which crashed to the first floor striking Mr. Lantz on the head.

KNOCKED WOMAN DOWN; IS FINED $50

George Ryan of No. 322 Medford street, Malden, was to-day fined $50 by Judge Duff because he struck Mrs. Laura Cummings in the mouth, knocking her down, Ryan, in the Prince street entrance of the tunnel yesterday, jostled the woman so that she objected to crowding to a guard. He then knocked her down.

HELD IN $1,200 EACH.

William J. Wallace and John Knot, both living on Tremont street, South End, were arraigned to-day before Judge Westworth on a charge of breaking and entering the room of John F. Duncan in the same house and stealing $35 worth of clothing and jewelry. They were held in $1,200 for the superior court.

16-Year-Old Girl Who Is Accused of Killing

HATTIE LE BLANC.

New photograph of Glover murder suspect, taken while she was telephoning

"I DID NOT KILL HIM"

HATTIE LE BLANC'S STORY OF WALTHAM TRAGEDY

Hattie Le Blanc Said:

Glover shot himself after threatening her.

She heard the fatal shot as she was escaping through a laundry window.

She stayed in the Glover house three days without food.

Her presence was not known to Mrs. Glover.

Drs. McDonald and Cousens Said:

"Glover could not have shot himself in back so that the bullet would have taken course it did."

Glover, Dying, Said:

"Hattie Le Blanc shot me."

Amazing Developments in the Glover Shooting Make Mystery Deeper Than Ever—Girl Held for Killing.

Hattie Le Blanc was to-day held without bail in the Waltham District Court charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover on last Saturday night. Through a lawyer, the girl pleaded not guilty. There was no examination in court that threw any additional light on the mysterious tragedy.

The police do not believe the girl's story. When she was dragged from under a bed in the Glover house last night, they cross-questioned her for four hours. She declared she did not shoot Glover. She said she thought he killed himself—an impossibility, the doctors say. She declared she had remained without food in the Glover house since the shooting, unknown to any of the members of the family.

A great crowd had gathered around the court room, where it was thought at first that the arraignment would be held, and scenes of the tense were in the throng. When the girl was led into the counsellors' room by Officer Hultreh it was apparent that she was dazed, and she stumbled several times.

When she was brought into the court house from the police station the girl presented a pitiful spectacle. She appeared younger than sixteen years. She showed extreme nervousness and appeared to be in a condition of great physical weakness.

It is understood that the Le Blanc girl will be questioned further to-day in the jail regarding Glover's death. To clear up certain phases of the case, which at present are obscured, the girl will be examined at greater length, and the police are hopeful that many facts having an important bearing on the tragedy will be brought to light.

Miss Le Blanc's Own Story.

Here is Hattie Le Blanc's own story:

"I was in the laundry with Mr. Glover on Saturday night. I met him there by appointment. We made the arrangement on Saturday morning. He was perfectly willing to meet me. He was there when I reached the laundry.

"I Did Not Shoot Him.

"I met him down stairs. We went up to the office on the second floor together. We had a talk. Glover attacked me. He had a revolver with him. I don't know where he got the revolver, or why he had it.

"I did not have the revolver in my hands at all. I never touched it. I did not shoot Him. I do not know who shot him. I think he shot himself.

"I left him and was going through the window on the floor below when I heard the shot. I didn't know he was shot or what it meant. I went through the Park way and Moody street. I hurried to the Glover house. I walked through Central, Newton and Main streets.

"I remained in the house all the time up to the time I was found. No one knew I was there. I had nothing to eat. I stayed in the same spot under the bed all the time.

"Saw No One Else."

"I do not know whether anybody else had anything to do with this thing or not. I did not see anyone else in the laundry.

"I did not talk to a single soul from

DEATH MESSAGE OF 168 MEN

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 24.—The bodies of 108 miners, most of them burned and charred beyond the possibility of identification were found to-day bodies in a tangled mass at the foot of the escape shaft of the third vein of the fire wrecked St. Paul mine.

Attempts to remove the bodies 560 feet below the surface cannot be resumed until boats are secured from the Illinois River, as there is three feet of water in the mine.

On pieces of slate the last to die had scrawled:

"There are 168 of us here. Many are dead and all must die. Goodby, every body."

The bodies are all badly decomposed and the positions in which they were found tell a terrible story of the tragic battle in the dark with improvised fans to keep back the deadly black damp which finally overcame them. From fifty to sixty hours, according to the calculation of experts, the imprisoned men fought incessantly with improvised fans against the black damp. Then, as one by one dropped upon their stool, and as they died their clothing was removed by the survivors to be used in making more fans. Working by relays in the dark, the doomed miners kept up an incessant fanning to drive back the gases that crept constantly upon them.

Many succumbed to fatigue and hunger in the first twenty-four hours. The survivors had no time to give aid to those who fell. They were fighting hopelessly for their lives.

The news that many more bodies had been found was known all over the stricken town within a few minutes. Once more the sad-faced widows and pale, weeping children crept across the barren ground to the pit mouth. A desperate effort into be made to remove all the bodies in the mine within twelve hours. It is now believed that unless the work is completed within that time the dangerous nature of the gases will compel abandonment of operations. Fifty undertakers are ready to conduct the funerals of the 168 dead, which will occur as fast as the bodies are identified.

The finding of the dead bodies clears up the mystery whether any of them were still alive, walled in a pocket by a barrier erected by themselves.

TICKET OF 9 IS CRITICISED BY STORROW

James J. Storrow, citizens' candidate for Mayor of Boston, in a statement issued to-day said that he did not consider the councilmanic ticket nominated last night "as representative of the entire city as it should be." His statement in full follows:

"As I have before publicly stated, I have had nothing whatever to do, whether directly or indirectly, with the selection by the Citizens' League of candidates for the city council.

"I was not consulted as to a single name submitted by the committee, and did not know until after the meeting last night what names were to be recommended by the nominating committee.

"I have not the slightest objection to any of the candidates presented by the Citizens' League. On the contrary I believe I could work loyally with each one of them as a member of the City Council to give the best possible administration, but mere personal fitness, even though of the highest order, is not the only thing to be considered in making the ticket representative of the best forces of this cosmopolitan city.

"I feel I ought to state frankly that I consider the ticket actually nominated not to be an representative of the entire city as it should be."

This statement was given out at the Storrow headquarters to-day by Secretary Edmund Billings. Among those who called on him to-day were James Donovan, president of the Democratic Ward and City Committee, and Congressman John A. Keliher.

C. F. JENNEY NAMED JUDGE BY GOVERNOR

Former Senator Charles F. Jenney of Hyde Park, was named by Governor Draper to-day for the vacancy in the Superior Court bench caused by the death of Judge Bishop of Newton. The nomination will come up for confirmation on Wednesday.

Mr. Jenney's name was mentioned for a judgeship when the late Judge Gaskill of Worcester died several months ago. He was also talked of for the same honor when Judge Maynard died. It was said at the State House to-day that former District Attorney Hill of Suffolk County could have succeeded Judge Bishop on the bench, but did not care to accept the post.

Mr. Jenney was born in Middleboro in 1850 and has lived in Hyde Park for twenty-seven years. He served in the Legislature before being elected to the Senate, and has been trustee of the public library there, attorney for the town and also for Norfolk County.

He is a graduate of the Boston University, where for many years he has lectured on Massachusetts law practice.

He was elected to the Senate in 1908.

SYMPHONY PLAYER FREED BY COURT

Weeping on the witness stand, Herman W. Kraus, a cellist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, protested his innocence when arraigned to-day before Judge Parmenter on a charge of stealing a violin valued at $300 from Ludwig T. Goodwin of Lynde street, West End. He was discharged. Kraus declared that he took the violin from Goodwin's shop pending to sell it for him when the house was broken into and the instrument taken. He had employed detectives to search the Boston pawnshops.

CABLE WEST INDIES AFTER 17-DAY WAIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The cable companies reported to-day that communication with all the West Indian stations had been re-established. They had been lost since the hurricane of November 7.

MASS FOR MAJOR LEONARD.

In St. Mark's Church, Dorchester avenue and Roslindale street, high mass of requiem will be offered at 9 o'clock tomorrow for the repose of the soul of the late Major John J. Leonard. The solemn mass will be pontificated by Rev. John Daly. Officers of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters and members of M. C. O. F. courts of Greater Boston will attend.

$5 FOR BREAD THEFT.

Hugh Riley, living at the Union House, South End, undertook a stroke of business without capital. He stole fifty loaves of bread left in front of Rose Trimble's grocery store at No. 122 Shawmut avenue. He was captured by Policeman Trainor and to-day told the Judge that he took the bread just to sell it. He was fined $5.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

BROOKLYN BANK MEN GO TO SING SING

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Colonel Edward Earl Britton and Frederick H. Schroeder, president and vice-president of the Eagle Savings and Loan Company of Brooklyn, before their conviction for grand larceny, were taken to Sing Sing Prison to-day to serve their sentences. Britton's is for not less than three or more than four years; Schroeder must serve not less than one or more than two years.

ALLOW C. S. MANN'S WILL.

The will of George Sumner, who died in Brookline October 27, was allowed to-day by Judge James Flint in the Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham. The testator leaves $300,000 in personal property, and $50,000 in real estate. Frank W. Wildes of Boston, Susan A. Mann and Ralph A. Stewart of Brookline, the executors, furnished $400,000 bonds apiece.

WAIT CABLE NEWS FROM COL. ASTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Colonel John Jacob Astor is expected to cable details of the storm experiences of himself and his son Vincent during the long period when wife and children in the Caribbean and Atlantic waters were fruitlessly searched by countless craft for some word of them, as soon as cable communication with the West Indies is reported and the hearts of his workers' worriment. Answers to urgent messages are expected hourly.

In the meantime all anxiety on the part of his friends and business associates has been dissipated. The news of his safety brought yesterday by the insular liner Jupiter Luckenbach, since supplemented by letters to friends here from Colonel Astor and the captain and crew, which also came on the Luckenbach, is accepted as final.

FORBES ASSUMES PHILIPPINE POST

MANILA, Nov. 24. — W. Cameron Forbes of Massachusetts to-day inaugurated Governor General of the Philippine Islands in the chamber of the popular assembly. The inauguration was the occasion for a great popular demonstration, and enormous crowds thronged the chamber and the streets surrounding the building.

RE-ELECT MAYOR FOSTER.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 24.—Mayor George J. Foster of this city was re-elected by a majority of 380 votes over Alderman George E. Sherry, the Democratic candidate. The vote was: Foster, Republican, 1,187; Sherry, Democrat, 807. This makes Foster's third term as Mayor.

24 ESCAPE FIRE; SMOKE KILLS MAN

James Alexander, twenty-five years old and married, was suffocated and twenty-four persons were rescued at a small fire in the basement of a four-story tenement at No. 100 Brighton street, West End, early to-day.

The blaze started in Alexander's basement, probably from an overturned lamp. The firemen smashed in the door of Alexander's room and placed the unconscious man in an ambulance, but he died on the way to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Although the fire was confined to the basement, the entire building was filled with smoke and the firemen had to assist the tenants to the street. Those helped out were Doris Rensberry, wife and three children, from the first floor; Jacob Bloman, wife and three young men named Weinberg, on the second floor; Joseph Gorman, wife and four children, from the third floor, and Hyman Green, wife and four children, who occupied the upper story.

AMUNDSEN RELATES FOOTBALL DANGERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Captain Roald Amundsen, Arctic and Antarctic explorer, here with his classmate of the Christiania University, F. Herman Gade, Norwegian consul at Chicago, and his wife.

The three attended the Yale-Harvard game last Saturday and it was the captain's first sight, he said, of a really dangerous situation. Polar exploration was no comparison.

NEW CHARGES OF FORGERY IN RUSSELL CASE

More evidence was furnished at the Russell will hearing to-day, showing that the letters testified to as being written by James D. Russell and which writing experts have said are identical with that of Daniel B. Russell were forgeries. The testimony was given by Handwriting Expert William T. Hingston, who resumed the witness stand in the East Cambridge court to-day.

The evidence is offered by the lawyers for Daniel Blake Russell, who have striven to show that Daniel Blake Russell is an impostor and that his real name is Runcan.

Daniel Blake Russell is seeking half of the $500,000 estate left by Daniel Russell of Melrose. The estate is held by William T. Russell.

A fragment of a letter was shown Expert Hingston. He identified the writing on one side as being that of the claimant. "That on the other side," said he, "although resembling it, was in my opinion done with another pen. Greater care was used and more pressure is evident in the writing."

Another letter dated October, 1907, and sent to a member of the Runcan family in Helena, New York, never reached its destination, according to Mr. Hingston, in which he said that it had. "This letter, although addressed to Helena," said Mr. Hingston, "never came there. It has no Helena cancellation postmark on it. The writing is different from that which Daniel Russell could ever write."

An application for membership in the Woodmen of the World, made by Daniel Russell, was also pronounced by Mr. Hingston to be a forgery. He said that several features of it were palpable forgeries. In the Insurance, where the applicant was asked to give the number of his brothers, he said a figure "3" was written over a figure "1."

Charles J. Peterson of St. Paul, Minn., testified that he knew Daniel Blake Russell and had seen him working at a lumber camp near Stillwater. This was in 1890. He identified the claimant in the courtroom as the same man. This testimony rebuts the record introduced by the respondent to show that James Delbert Runcan was in jail in 1890.

JAPAN'S HAND IN THEFT OF KNOX PAPERS?

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24.—Although the utmost secrecy prevails at the State Department to-day concerning the value of the documents and private papers taken by burglars last night at the Somerset home of Secretary of State Knox at Valley Forge, Pa., it is believed that the secret service has detailed some of its best men on the case. Chief Wilkie and Assistant Chief Moran of the secret service, refused to affirm or deny that the service is investigating the robbery. Mr. Moran said, "I don't know anything about it."

Other officials are equally reticent. There was enough unusual activity at secret service headquarters to-day, however, to give credence to the rumor that secret service sleuths have been put on the trail of the burglars. Owing to the fact that the robbers took nothing but papers, ignoring many valuables, it is believed that State documents of the utmost importance were taken. Secretary Knox is known to have been in the habit of carrying State papers to Valley Forge.

While it is also believed that the present trouble with Nicaragua because of shooting of two alleged American citizens by Zelaya, is of small remote degree connected with the burglary, there is ground for assuming that the cunning and deft hand of Japan may have had something to do with the incident. It is known that Secretary Knox had the Crane incident under consideration while at Valley Forge and also certain matters affecting American interests in Manchuria, which the Japanese government has actively opposed.

While it is said that the secret service division will take steps to ascertain if any Japanese were seen around the secretary's home at Valley Forge within the last few days, yet officials of that division believe that even if the Japanese government did have a hand in the affair, Japanese would not have been directly employed to purloin the papers.

HATTIE LE BLANC'S OWN STORY OF GLOVER LAUNDRY TRAGEDY

Girl Accused of Murder Declares She Fled from Employer, Heard Shot Afterward, and Hid Three Days Under Bed at Home.

the time I left the laundry until the time I was found under the bed. Glover said he would kill me if I told what had happened. The comb and hairpin found in the laundry are mine.

"When I went to the house I left myself in through a rear door. I didn't see anyone else in the house at the time. I went to the second floor, to what we call the spare room. Mr. Glover slept there sometimes. I took off my hat and shoes and laid them beside me.

"I got a pillow from the sofa and laid my head on it. I was very much frightened. I cried myself to sleep. It was awful cold and I was awful hungry. I wanted to go downstairs to the pantry and get something to eat, but I was afraid that someone would see me.

"Thought I Would Starve."

"I thought I would starve to death. I didn't know Mr. Glover was dead. As I told you, I didn't see him shot—all I know about it was that I heard a shot as I was going away from the building. It looked to me as though he may have shot himself, as if he were ashamed of treating me in the way he did.

"I hid away under the bed all that time because I was ashamed of myself and because I was afraid. I was not afraid of being arrested, but I was afraid of what I would happen if it became known that I had met Mr. Glover in the laundry at night."

Taken to Jail.

Accompanied by Inspector McKenna and Sergeant Curran, Hattie Le Blanc left Waltham in a big automobile for the East Cambridge jail shortly after 11 o'clock. The girl, described by the police as over five feet tall and weighing more than 190 pounds, is not more than four feet ten inches and does not weigh more than eighty pounds.

It was learned that Lawyer Tufts was brought into the case through the influence of the Rev. C. H. Stackpole, a Methodist minister, formerly of Bangor. He lives on the floor below the Glovers, know Hattie Le Blanc and does not believe she killed Glover.

Held Without Bail.

Hattie Le Blanc was arraigned in the Waltham court. Judge Enos T. Lore presides in this court. Before the arraignment the question of the girl's age came up, as the law provides that all persons under seventeen shall be arraigned in the juvenile court. The girl was questioned as to her age. She said she was under sixteen.

The arraignment was private. The girl wore a heavy veil, completely hiding her features. Court Officer George Hildreth had her in charge. She was taken to the courtroom by a side entrance. Lawyer Lincoln A. Tufts, who has a reputation as a football coach, represented her. He waived the reading of the charge and she pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder. She was held without bail for arraignment in two weeks. Arrangements were made to take her to the East Cambridge jail.

How Charge Reads.

This is the charge made against the girl:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Middlesex, ss:

To the Second District Court of Eastern Middlesex, holden at Waltham for the transaction of criminal business within the County of Middlesex. James H. McKenna of Waltham, in said county, in behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on oath complains that Henrietta Le Blanc, otherwise called Hattie Le Blanc and otherwise called Hattie Le Blanc, on the twenty-sixth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and nine, at Waltham, in said county, being armed with a dangerous weapon, to wit, a revolver, did assault Clarence F. Glover, with intent to murder him, and him, the said Clarence F. Glover, she did then and there murder by shooting him with said revolver, against the peace of said Commonwealth and contrary to the form of the statutes in such case made and provided.

(Signed) JAMES H. McKENNA.
Middlesex, ss.

Received and sworn to this twenty-fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and nine, before said court.

(Signed) BUTLER ROBERTS, Clerk.

It is expected that another arrest will be made in the case. The police are certain that Glover did not shoot himself. If the Le Blanc girl did not, who did?

The police are anxious to know from Mrs. Glover why she did not know that her own roof was sheltering for three days the girl whom her husband in almost the last moments, had accused as the person who shot him, or if she did not know that the girl was there, how Hattie Le Blanc could have concealed her presence so long.

They are anxious to have Mrs. Glover explain why she did not go to comfort her husband as he lay dying in the office of Dr. Nicholas P. Cousins, who told them at the time that she could not bear to look at his agony, but the light of her subsequent demeanor that reason does not seem adequate to them.

Mysteries to Solve.

They wish to know why Glover, as reported by Dr. Cousens, when told that his wife was downstairs in the laundry called aster?: "Would she shoot me if she came up?"

Of the same importance is considered the necessity for knowing why Mrs. Glover, when informed of the shooting, asked: "Did it with his own revolver, of course?"

It is plain that the police are of the belief that the murderer of the story has hardly been scratched, and that a great deal of work remains before them.

Mrs. Glover, the widow of the dead manufacturer, is practically, although not technically, under arrest in her house at No. 428 Main street. Two police officers are watching the house, with orders to take her into custody if she attempts to leave the premises. They are not to act if she stays in the house in the future.

Hattie Le Blanc says that she believes that Glover died by his own hand, in a statement made to the police directly after her arrest, she said that she had met him in the laundry by appointment and that he attacked her. Then she said, she ran out of his presence, escaping from the building by a window. She knows he shot himself, she says, because he had a revolver with which he threatened her before he committed the attack.

Had Secret Information.

The search of the house was made in response to secret information. One of the undertakers who had helped to prepare Glover's body for burial, had told them that he had reason to believe that Hattie Le Blanc was hiding in the house. Suppressing this evidence "clue," from what source the police have not revealed.

Mrs. Glover met the police with a ready acquiescence for a search of the premises. While she was talking with Chief McKenna, in the landing of the first floor stairway, Inspector McKenna and Sergeant Currin went into a spare room in which Glover sometimes slept, and there, by the light of an electric flare, discovered Hattie Le Blanc hiding under a bed.

The girl was the same one whom they had seen in the laundry at the Glover residence in Waltham, which Hattie did. Six weeks ago the other two girls—Lillian and Irene—got money and went to Waltham, where they were given work. The money, Mrs. Sampson says, was supplied by Mrs. Glover and Hattie.

Mrs. Sampson says she knows little of Mrs. Glover's family. She says Hattie Le Blanc's father and mother are living and that the father is about eighty years old. She says the Le Blanc girls were brought up under excellent conditions. She cannot believe Hattie shot Glover, as she girl knew nothing of the use of firearms, as there were none in her home.

Lawyers Were There.

Attorney Samuel D. Elmore, who was the murdered man's counsel and the executor of his will, and his partner, Alton F. Tupper, went to headquarters immediately afterward. They were permitted to talk with the girl, and were present when she was asked to make a statement explaining her movements before and after the shooting.

Chief McKenna sent for Miss Emily Bowers, stenographer for Mayor Edward A. Walker, and for Miss Sullivan, an interpreter, as Hattie Le Blanc understands English only imperfectly. Mayor Walker joined the party and, in the presence of Mayor Walker, the police officers, the lawyers and the interpreter, Hattie Le Blanc told her version of the killing.

The questioning of the girl lasted four hours, and, its conclusion, Hattie Le Blanc was formally placed under arrest on the charge of murder and Sergeant Curran was directed by Chief McKenna, who left the police building quietly, to make a formal statement.

Sergeant Curran was asked at once a number of questions intended to amplify the statement or to make clear certain points upon which it was not clear.

House Searched Before.

"Did she say whether she got into the Glover house with a key or was she admitted by some other person?" was the first question.

"I can't tell," was the sergeant's answer, "when McKenna and I came home, and had given orders not to be disturbed I wasn't there all the time she was talking."

"Did the police ever search the Glover house before in seeking for the girl?"

"Yes," reluctantly admitted the sergeant.

"When was that?"

"Sunday afternoon."

"Did they go into the room in which Hattie Le Blanc was found?"

"Yes, I was in that room; we had a kerosene lamp, and I looked under the bed, but there was no girl there when we looked."

"How did the girl get into the laundry?"

"She says Glover was there and let her in."

"What were the lawyers present for when Hattie Le Blanc was being questioned?"

"They were there as interested parties."

"Do you think that the girl had the assistance of someone else in the murder of her story, to shield a third party?"

"Well, you'd better see the girl," said the sergeant.

"If Hattie Le Blanc's statement is accepted, that she hadn't seen anyone since Saturday night, how did she know that Glover was dead?"

A Significant Question.

A shrug of the shoulders was Sergeant Curran's response to this, and the interview was closed.

Before reading the formal statement Sergeant Curran said that the girl acted like a frightened bird. He also said that in their first talk with the police, on Saturday night, Mrs. Glover asked them: "You know, of course, that he was killed with his own pistol?"

The police are not letting that question by Mrs. Glover get out of their minds for a moment. They say that when she asked the question there was no apparent reason why she should know that it was Glover's own pistol that had delivered the fatal bullet.

Sisters Go to Gloucester.

Irene and Lillian Le Blanc, sisters of Hattie Le Blanc, have left Waltham in consequence of the publicity of the murder case, and are at the home of half sisters and brothers, with whom they will live. Both girls are unusually attractive.

Irene is at the home of her half sister, Mrs. Joseph Sampson, and Lillian went to the home of Mrs. Amelia White.

Mrs. Sampson said that Irene told her that when she and Lillian went to Mrs. Glover's they found her in the best of spirits. She told the girls not to worry about Hattie. She told them "Hattie is all right. She may be at the office or even at the house here at this very moment. This statement the two girls did not relate to the police as neither speaks English, and they could understand few of the questions put to them by the police.

Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. Glover went to her home in West Arlcnat, C. B., about two years ago. She said the woman's maiden name was Le Blanc and that her father's name was David. She said Mrs. Glover met Hattie Le Blanc while there, and on her return to Waltham she sent Hattie money to come to Waltham, which Hattie did.

She says the Le Blanc girls were brought up under excellent conditions. She cannot believe Hattie shot Glover, as the girl knew nothing of the use of firearms, as there were none in her home.

PARENTS HORRIFIED BY CHARGE AGAINST HATTIE LE BLANC

WEST ARICHAT, C. B., Nov. 24. — That Hattie Le Blanc is not guilty of the murder of her employer, Edward C. Glover, is the unanimous opinion of the people of this village.

She was employed by the Glovers as a domestic and was apparently a model of propriety. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Le Blanc, are hard-working poor farm people, and when they heard their daughter was wanted on the charge of murdering Mr. Glover, they were nearly crazed with grief.

"My daughter, my daughter, guilty of such a crime," wailed the mother; "it is impossible and beyond belief. My darling, the child that I have fed and taught to pray at my knee. It is a lie, she could not find the heart to do such a deed. She always spoke kindly and in the best of terms of both her employers. She loved them equally and the thought of her having either of them is preposterous."

When told that Mr. Glover with his last breath had named Hattie, Mrs. Le Blanc replied: "No, who accuses her? I declare my daughter was innocent. Hattie must be the victim of some plot to injure her good name. There must be a third party connected with this affair, and when the matter has been sifted down, my daughter will have been proved innocent. Of that I am assured."

Mr. Le Blanc, Hattie's father, a stooped, old man, who was overcome with grief upon hearing the news, "She did not do it. Mr. Glover," he said with conviction, "my daughter could not do such a thing. Why she was a good baby from the time she lived. I would give my right arm not rather than that she should have left us. Her letters home were always full of good cheer and kind words for both Mr. and Mrs. Glover, who were like father and mother to her. It appeared as if they could not do enough to make her happy. No, she is charged with killing Mr. Glover. It is not true. I will swear to it."

SIX LIVES ARE LOST IN FIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Rumored in by 8 flames in the four-story tenement house at No. 4 Allen street, in the heart of the city, six persons were burned to death today and fourteen more were injured, four of whom, it is thought, will die. Fire Marshal Brophy declares that the fire was of incendiary origin.

The firemen made many thrilling rescues, and from their perilous perch there would have been many more fatalities. The building, which was sold Thursday by the janitor, to be owned by the Long Island Railroad Company, was surrounded by lots, and because of its exposed condition the flames at once had the start and did their work quickly.

There is only one stairway, on the side of the building, and only one fire escape, so the frightened occupants had to a rumble on the floor above the ground floor. There were about sixty tenants in the house.

WOMAN JUMPS TO DEATH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A woman apparently about thirty-five years old committed suicide today by jumping in front of a Sixth avenue elevated train at One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Eighth avenue.

3 FINED FOR BOXING BOUTS

The efforts of the South Boston police to close up the National Athletic Club resulted in the arrest of Fred O'Brien, Jack Goldberg and Dave Foley, who appeared before Court to-day when Judge Fallon fined three of the boxers arrested there on Monday night. Each, the men are charged with mutual assault and battery.

The prosecuting officer to-day was Police Sergeant James Smith of the Broadway police station, acting for Captain Hall, in charge of the precinct. The chief witness against the boxers was David A. Nash, a patrolman from the Joy street police station.

All of the boxers appealed to the Superior Court from their fines to-day and were held in bonds of $100 each.

METCALF CO. TO HAVE MESSENGER SERVICE

In view of the growth of business in the direction of Boylston street, the Theodore Metcalf Company has decided to transfer all their retail prescription business from 39 Tremont street to their Copley square store.

A regular service of messengers to all parts of the down-town business district will be established and prescriptions will be called for upon request.

For this service three telephones will be maintained as receiving telephones for customers' orders. Four regular trips a day will be made by the messenger corps.

The goods or prescriptions ordered will be delivered in the quickest possible time, with no inconvenience or trouble to the customer.

The laboratory and manufacturing departments at 39 Tremont street will be removed to No. 161 Franklin St.

LE BLANC GIRL DAZED WHEN FOUND IN THIRD SEARCH OF THE HOUSE

It was the sharpness of a Waltham undertaker that led to the capture of Hattie Le Blanc in the Glover home, 428½ Main street, Waltham, and the undertaker had charge of the funeral of Glover, saw the girl under the bed. He at once notified the police. They searched the house and found the missing housemaid. A similar tip was given to the police about an hour later by Samuel D. Elmore, executor of the Glover estate.

Coolidge, while at the Glover home, about an hour previous to the funeral exercises, had occasion to go to the room which had been occupied by Glover. The undertaker will not say what he saw there, except to say that he observed something that was very suspicious. He will neither admit or deny that at that time he saw Hattie Le Blanc crouched underneath the bed.

He had time prior to the funeral to notify the police of what he had observed. After the burial, however, he immediately got Chief McKenna of the Waltham police on the telephone, and gave to that official the facts. The chief called a consultation of the men at work on the case and determined to search the Glover home.

While the police were preparing to go to the Glover home the chief received a telephone message from Samuel D. Elmore the lawyer. The lawyer said it would be useless for the police to make a search of the Glover house.

House Searched Twice.

The police had searched the house twice and had failed to find anything that would help to solve the mystery. Elmore, in his phone conversation, did not say that the missing girl was at the Glover home, but he simply thought the police would do well to come around again.

Inspector William P. McKenna, a brother of the chief, and Sergeant Richard Currin immediately started for the Glover house. They went right on stairs to the living rooms on the second floor, over the front kitchen first, the dining room next, and finally, the room which had been occupied by the laundryman.

The bedroom was in darkness. The blinds were closed. A heavy portiere was drawn across the door. There was nothing to indicate, as the officers entered, the room that could be hiding there.

Girl Under Bed.

Sergeant Currin carried an electric searchlight. He threw the rays of this around the room, but found nothing suspicious. Then he dropped to his knees and looked under the bed.

Far back against the wall he discerned what appeared to be a long bundle of clothing. The nose moved. Instantly realizing that the object was a person—evidently someone who feared the police—he crawled under the bed, and dragged the person from under it. He found that it was a girl; that the girl was Hattie Le Blanc.

She was in her stocking feet. Her hair was a tangled mass, looking as if it had not been combed for some time. She was without a hat, which was no frightened that she could hardly speak.

The police held the girl up on her feet. So weak was she that she would have fallen to the floor without the help of the two officers. Even then she still clung to a pillow, upon which her head had been resting when she was first seen by Sergeant Currin.

Signs of Suffering.

The young housemaid seemed to be dazed. Her eyes were red and bloodshot. They were sunken deep in her head. The skin was drawn tightly over cheek bones, showing the intense suffering she had undergone.

Only for a moment did she stand dazed. Then she commenced to cry and moan and to speak in French. What she said at that time the officers do not know, as neither understood her language.

The police took her into the sitting room, which leads from the bedroom, and got her shoes. She put these on when directed by the officers.

While the officers and the girl were in the sitting room Mrs. Glover came in. She had evidently just ascended from the first floor. She took in the situation without a tremor.

"What does this mean?" asked one of the officers.

"Why, I did not know that she was here" answered Mrs. Glover. She said this without a sign of emotion. There was not the flicker of an eyelash. There was not a tremor to her voice.

ARREST OF GIRL BUT DEEPENS MYSTERY IN THE GLOVER CASE

Conflicting Statements of Dying Man and Miss Le Blanc Lead Police to Hunt for Third Person.

By JOHN J. McMAHON.

The mystery as to who shot and killed Clarence F. Glover has grown deeper with the statement of Hattie Le Blanc, the alleged slayer of the young business man.

The pretty young housemaid is held charged with the murder. Her story, told during the four hours of relentless cross-examination by the Waltham police, is utter at variance with the dying statement of her employer.

Glover declared he was shot by the Le Blanc girl. He said he was lured to the laundry. He could not ascribe any motive for the tragedy.

Hattie Le Blanc told the police, following her arrest, that she did not shoot Glover. She declared he shot himself. She said she went to the laundry at his request. She could not tell of any motive, acceptable in the eyes of the police, why he should take his own life.

Her statement offsets his. In the eyes of the law her story is entitled to as much credence as that told by the dying laundryman. There is a remarkable contrast in the statements of the two principals in the case.

Mysterious Third Person.

Eliminating all rumors, the preponderance of evidence—even if that evidence would not be admitted at a judicial hearing—is that there is a mysterious third person connected with the case.

Did this person "frame-up" the meeting of Glover and Miss Le Blanc? Did this person connive to murder Glover? Did this person fire the fatal shots?

These three questions are yet to be satisfactorily answered. Once answered correctly and the most peculiar murder mystery in the criminal history of New England will have been solved.

If the supposition that Hattie Le Blanc deliberately planned the murder of her employer is correct, what evidence have the authorities to support a charge? As the situation stands to-day, absolutely none.

On the other hand, if Glover's story is true, what have the police in the line of corroborative evidence? There is absolutely nothing, outside of Glover's dying statement.

Arrest is Likely.

Now as to the mysterious third person, would it not be possible for a man or a woman to have killed Glover while he or she was hiding in the building? Isn't it also possible that the shots were fired at such a time and from such a location as to make Glover imagine he had been shot by some one other than Hattie Le Blanc, or to make the housemaid believe that her employer had committed suicide?

The facts to date prove this: That Glover was shot while talking with Miss Le Blanc, and that the bullet was discharged while Glover was turned away from his assailant.

An arrest is likely to occur at any moment. If such an arrest is made it will result in the apprehension of a woman. With the statements made by Dr. Conesca and his wife in the possession of the police, the vital thing now remaining to be ferreted down is to learn the identity of the third person, believed to be implicated as an accessory before or after the fact.

The police cannot shake off the belief that there was a third person who figured in the tragedy. They don't believe Miss Le Blanc told the truth. They don't think that Glover gave them all the essential facts in the case. They are firmly of the opinion that someone was shielded.

House Was Tenanted.

Hattie Le Blanc, who admits that she was in the laundry at the time Glover was killed, was found under Glover's bed in his home on Main street. That house has been reported since the tragedy by Mrs. Glover and two intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Freeman of Auburndale.

To revert to the accused girl. She claims, in her statement to the police, that she remained in hiding in the Glover home from Saturday night to the time of her capture, about 8 o'clock last night. She also claims she did not see anyone in the house and that nobody her.

Did Mrs. Glover know that Hattie Le Blanc was in the house? Did Mr. and Mrs. Freeman know likewise?

Mrs. Glover saw Hattie Le Blanc five minutes after she was captured by the police. She showed no signs of alarm, displayed no nervousness.

"What means this?" asked one of the officers.

"Why, I did not know she was here," Mrs. Glover answered calmly.

Black Dress Disappears.

The police believe that there was a plot to smuggle Hattie Le Blanc from the Glover home. They have thus far been unable to find out the parties concerned in it.

On Saturday night while Patrolman Fred E. Thompson was patrolling Main street he saw a big touring car come to a stop in front of the Glover home. It remained there several minutes. The inquest the chauffeur replied the officer, he put on the power and sped away. There was only one front light on the machine. There was no tail light.

On the day of the funeral one of the undertakers saw a black gown lying on the very bed under which Hattie Le Blanc was found. Some one saw him looking at it, and when he went down stairs the dress was removed.

Who took it is a question that the police would like to find out. Did some person who had access to the Glover home that day try to smuggle the fugitive housemaid away? Was there a plot to take the girl away from Waltham as a mourner in one of the hacks?

Mysterious 'Phone Call.

Here is another peculiar feature about the case that centres on the Glover home. On the night that Glover died some one, as yet unidentified, called Dr. Conesca's hospital on the 'phone. Here is the conversation that took place, in brief:

"Dr. Conesca's hospital?"

"Yes."

"How is Mr. Glover?"

"Dying. Who is this?"

"I am calling for Mrs. Glover. Did Mr. Glover make any statement?"

"He made a statement to the police authorities."

"Did he incriminate or blame his wife?"

Dr. Conesca at this moment answered a call from one of the nurses on the upper story. When he again spoke over the phone the party on the other end of the line had gone. The person was a woman.

Police Wait Three Days.

Samuel D. Elmore, executor of the Glover estate, was a frequent visitor to the Glover home following the shooting. He was at the funeral, accompanying Mrs. Glover to the grave. He has not allowed the newspaper men to have an interview with Mrs. Glover.

He and his law partner were at the Waltham police headquarters last night when Hattie Le Blanc was put through the third degree. He was not there, it is said, as counsel for the Le Blanc girl. He was there because of curiosity.

Many unacquainted with the methods of the Waltham police would like to know why Elmore and Dr. Le Baron were allowed to hear the statement of Hattie Le Blanc.

Those who have closely followed the case are at a loss to explain the attitude of the Waltham police. They made no arrest during until last night, three days after the murder.

Trained police officials know that the trail becomes colder with the passing of each day. Why did the Waltham police wait till Tuesday night before making a first decisive step?

$100,000 DEMAND FROM NICARAGUA

ranged to have reports sent through his department to the State Department from the commanders of American warships in the vicinity of Nicaragua.

Fear Wholesale Executions.

Reports are expected to-day from Commander John H. Shipley of the Des Moines, now at Port Limon, and from Commanders Frank K. Hill of the Marietta and Alexander S. Halstead of the Vicksburg.

Grave fears are entertained here by those best acquainted with conditions in Nicaragua, and more particularly with the character of Zelaya, that the dictator in his desperation will kill every one of the hundreds of Americans and notable Nicaraguans he has thrown into his prisons on the flimsiest of pretexts before his power is ended, unless that end is brought suddenly. Having dared to execute two American citizens in the face of all the rules of war, there is little likelihood that fear would stay him from killing others of his countrymen who have protested against his tyranny. Port Limon, it is said, will be the base of the American warships, being on the Atlantic and in easy communication with Washington.

It is reported that the rate of exchange in Western Nicaragua has reached 1000 per cent, and that business is paralyzed.

Dispatches Intercepted?

Failure of this government to hear from its representative in Nicaragua has caused the belief at the department that dispatches from Managua to the State Department are being tampered with by the Zelaya government. There is also a possibility, it is said, that American Vice Consul Caldera at Managua has met with some physical interference. He is disliked by Zelaya.

MORE AMERICANS ARE THROWN INTO JAIL BY ZELAYA

PANAMA, Nov. 24.—President Zelaya is throwing every American he can lay hands on, whether he be tourist or business man, into prison unless he contributes to the Zelaya war fund, according to Edgar S. Harris of Columbus, O. Harris declared several Americans were confined in the prisons at Managua and that there and elsewhere they are held incommunicado until they accede to Zelaya's extortions. He himself had been insulted and practically driven out of Corinto, he said.

A message from Porte Cortes, Spanish Honduras, reports that the telegraph advises from Managua say it is believed in Nicaragua that the government authorities in Port Limon, Costa Rica, and former President Esphael Iglesias and his followers have aided the revolutionists.

WARSHIPS HELD AT PORTSMOUTH AWAIT NICARAGUA ORDERS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 24.—Advices on the United States warships Dubuque and Paducah to-day found all shore liberties curtailed, the navy department having issued orders that every man be kept on board, ready for instant departure.

The ships arrived at the Portsmouth navy yard for repairs which usually occupy about thirty days, and hundreds of the sailors had planned for shore excursions Thanksgiving Day. On account of secret orders received from Washington the commanding officers have been greatly curtailed and is already nearly completed, working the yard force night and day. The belief is general that the ships will be rushed to Nicaragua.

HEARST NOT IN MINE TROUBLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. — Recent dispatches concerning the labor troubles of the Homestake mines, having established assertions that Mr. William R. Hearst was interested in these properties, Mr. Hearst made the following statement:

"I have not one single share of interest in the Homestake mining property. I never had a share of interest in it, nor have I ever had the slightest part in the management of the property. My own properties I conduct along certain well known lines and whether these lines are right or wrong I am glad to assume responsibility for them.

"My responsibility, however, must necessarily end with the properties in which I am interested and cannot possibly extend to properties in which I have no interest whatever and over which I have no control."

NIELSEN WILL SING TONIGHT

HAPPIER LIFE BOSTON AIM SAYS STORROW

In his first public address since his nomination for Mayor, James J. Storrow was given an enthusiastic reception by the members of Pilgrim Publicity Association at the Exchange club last night. For fully a minute after the speaker was announced the applause continued, the hundred and fifty members standing up at the mention of his name and mixing cheers with the handclapping.

The meeting was the Thanksgiving dinner of the association and also celebrated New England day. George W. Coleman, president of the association, was toastmaster. Other speakers were Herbert Knowlton, who spoke on "New England's call to arms," and C. M. Tassell, chairman of the publicity committee of the Business Chamber of Commerce, who sought the West's Message to New England." A poem, "The First Thanksgiving," by Margaret Jenkins Preston, was read. Mr. Storrow's subject was "New England's Message to the Country."

Herbert Knowlton named the great agrarian movement—the "return to the soil" movement—which is filling the South-west with hundreds of thrifty new cities and filling thousands out of the over-crowded centres.

BRAND QUITS MAYOR FIGHT; HIBBARD NEXT, SAY STORROW MEN

Chairman Frederick J. Brand of the Board of Aldermen withdrew from the mayoralty contest at 10 a. m. today. He will accept the nomination for City Council given by the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty. The Alderman's friends were not fully made up, he says, until Sunday. The friends of James J. Storrow say now that Mayor George A. Hibbard will be the next to withdraw. They look to Guy A. Thayer, former assistant United States district attorney, to bring about his withdrawal. Sam promised them several days ago that Brand would withdraw.

Brand's withdrawal was made in the interest of good government, he says, and with a desire to let two or three candidates from he considers stronger mayoralty possibilities than himself right front. "The nomination for the City Council was not my seeking," he said to-day, "but I accept the situation."

Kelley for Fitzgerald.

The managers of the James J. Storrow campaign were worried to-day by reports from East Boston and Charlestown that those sections would not fall in line because their candidacies for the City Council had been turned down by the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty.

Thomas I. Kelley, motorman candidate for Mayor, who promised John F. Fitzgerald some days ago that he would support him if he decided to step in the race, has withdrawn and declared for Fitzgerald.

Although the Storrow managers confidently predict Mayor Hibbard's withdrawal from the race, the Mayor himself declares that he will "stick to the finish." The finish, he says, means January 11, the date of the city election, and not December 17, the last day for filing nomination papers.

The Mayor's friends say that his candidacy for re-election is so much of a certainty that he is preparing to ask for the resignations of city officials who are working for other candidates. David J. Tilley, member of the Sinking Fund Commission, and Herbert S. Carruth, deputy penal institutions Commissioner, are said to be first in line for resignation requests. Some city officials are working for Hibbard's nomination, but they have preferred leave of absence.

Split in Donovan Machine.

The expected split in the Donovan democratic machine, following Donovan's declaration for Storrow, has come. Senator James H. Doyle is already in the Fitzgerald camp, though he is not shouting about it from the housetops.

There is much speculation as to what position Representative Timothy F. Callahan of Ward 9 will take in the mayoralty race. Callahan has fought the Donovan and Bowen machines in Ward 9. Donovan's support of Storrow and Bowen's support of Fitzgerald have made him hesitate. He would like to be against both of them.

BUT 2 PARTIES LEFT WITH A LEGAL STATUS

The official count of the votes cast in the State election, which was reported by the Governor's Council to-day, shows that there are only two political parties of legal standing in the State, the Republican and Democratic.

The Socialist, Prohibition and Socialist Labor candidates for Governor failed to receive the 3 per cent. of the total vote, which is required for party standing. The total number of votes cast is 301,033. The official plurality of Governor Draper over James H. Vahey, the Democratic candidate, is 7,924. The plurality of Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham over Eugene N. Foss, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor is 7,758.

The number of votes necessary for a legal party standing this year was 11,736. Daniel A. White of Brockton, candidate of the Socialist party, received 10,137, or 593 less than the number required to give an official party title for the Socialists.

The official count for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor is as follows:

For Governor.

	Votes.
Draper, Republican, has	190,386
And appears to be elected.
Vahey, Democratic, has	182,252
White, Socialist, has	10,137
Nichols, Prohibition, has	6,421

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Paris Doctor Makes a Dead Dog Bark.

PARIS—Dr. Marage demonstrated before the Academy of Science that a dog's bark does not die with the dog. In the course of experiments on the larnyx and in voice production he discovered that the application of a feeble electric current to certain muscles of the throat after the lungs had been artificially inflated caused a dead dog to bark in a lifelike manner. He multiplied the experiments and produced bowls. Dr. Marage now asserts that he is able to produce either barks or bowls by changing the current. He deduces from this the probability that the so-called loss of voice by singers may be counteracted by electricity applied to restore muscular activity to the larynx.

Maine Man in Glory in Paris.

PARIS—Parisians again enjoy perfect autumnal weather. Sunshine and crisp air predominate. A stranger from Maine was much in evidence. He was still more lionized when he met a man from Kentucky with a red nose.

"Glorious!" exclaimed the first.

"Beastly!" snapped the other.

"Pray, why?" queried the man from Maine. "It is not Arctic weather."

"For me it is," retorted Kentucky. "Come and have a nip to keep the cold out, and enlighten me on the difference between indigenous and adventitious." The man from Maine bolted.

Notable Wedding in London.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—An interesting wedding took place at St. Paul's Cathedral to-day. The principals are the Hon. Charles Beresford Fulke Greville, eldest son and heir of Baron Greville and former captain of the Queen's Bussars, and Mrs. Henry Kerr, the widowed daughter of Mrs. J. W. Grace. The bride is a niece of Michael P. Grace of Belgrave Square, the father of Lady Donoughmore and Mrs. Jay Phippa of New York.

Perin's Alhambra a Dream.

MADRID—Lawrence Perin's alleged discoveries on the state at Ronda begin to be doubted, and in many quarters they are wholly disbelieved. Some newspapers quote Perin's supposed saying that the alleged treasures are non-existent, and these journals declare that the whole thing is a hoax. It is stated that Perin has left Madrid mysteriously and gone alone to Ronda, evading the architect whom the government appointed to accompany him to inventory the alleged finds.

Another Rembrandt Found.

COPENHAGEN—While exploring the upper galleries of the royal castle of Fredensborg, Professor Carl Madsen, one of the directors of the National Museum of Denmark, discovered a grimy picture of an old man which was not catalogued. He had the picture cleaned and taken to the museum, where it was inspected by Dr. Decroot, the great Dutch art connoisseur, who declared it was a veritable Rembrandt and painted about 1630.

Bliss Perry's Paris Lecture.

PARIS—Professor Bliss Perry of Harvard yesterday began his series of lectures on American topics, which will include Franklin, Jefferson, Cooper, Hawthorne, Poe, Emerson, ending with Lincoln. The lecture was delivered in the Richelieu amphitheatre of the university, and a large and distinguished audience, including ex-Premier Clemenceau and the faculty of the university, gave Professor Perry a hearty reception.

$20,000 a Month for Paulhan.

PARIS—Negotiations have practically been concluded whereby M. Paulhan, the French aeronaut, will go to America to take part in the exhibition flights during aviation week at Los Angeles. Later he will give exhibitions at the Mardi Gras at New Orleans and at other places in the South. M. Paulhan will receive $20,000 a month.

To Solve Herculaneum Papyri.

ROME—At a meeting of the Cabinet a bill was approved providing for the formation of a special department for unrolling and deciphering papyri discovered at Herculaneum. Many of the precious manuscripts have been damaged irrevocably owing to the delay and neglect of the authorities.

Big Russian Military Graft.

ST. PETERSBURG—Senator Garin, who was appointed some time ago to investigate the frauds in the Russian military establishments, has made a report which reveals embezzlements in the commissariat department amounting to several million rubles.

Dreadnought's Great Speed.

PLYMOUTH, England—The new British dreadnought Vanguard completed an eight-hour trial, during which she attained the remarkable speed of 22.4 knots an hour, a full knot in excess of the Admiralty's stipulation.

FIFTY-MILE GALE TIES UP ALL SHIPPING

With a "nor'easter" blowing fifty miles an hour across Boston Harbor and sixty miles outside, everything but ocean-going shipping and the dauntless Grand Bank fishing vessels is tied up snug at wharves or sheltered anchorage to-day.

From all along the coast come reports of one of the heaviest seas and highest winds in years.

At Winthrop Crest, where a high sea wall protects the land and cottages from the surf, the wind, waves and spray are reported the worst since the great storm of 1898, in which the steamer Portland was lost.

Highland Light reported to Boston that a sixty-mile gale was lashing the Cape Cod waters into foam all along that exposed coast.

At both Provincetown and Vineyard Haven big fleets of Boston-bound vessels are lying at anchor waiting for the wind or to clear before venturing out. The fleet anchored in Provincetown harbor alone included three lumber schooners and several fishing vessels. They stayed in the harbor all day.

The sixty-mile gale from the northeast caused a sensation between two vessels in Provincetown harbor during the night. A small, white schooner, name unknown, dragged her anchor and was driven against the big schooner Mary E. Sawyer. The mainboom was carried away.

In Boston harbor there was moving all day except the ferries and a few steamers. The Eastern Steamship Company's Bay State started for Portland at 7 o'clock, steamed as far as President Roads, came to anchor, and finally put about and gave up the trip. She returned to the pier to wait out the storm.

The Governor Dingley of the same line arrived here at 11 a. m. from Portland, reporting very heavy weather.

Many tugs, lumbagos and a steamer bearing the Merchants & Miners' signals entered Highland Light at 5 a. m., bound for Boston. The Ontendaga came into port at 10 a. m.

A big fleet of barges and sailing vessels and small steamers was tied up in Boston harbor since yesterday noon. Another fleet was anchored in President Roads, riding out the gale. Vessels anchored on South Boston flats and Bird Island flats began to drag anchors under the fierce wind and sea pressure. Tugs put out to the assistance. The vessels were towed back to their anchorages and double anchored in safety.

Pilmouth reported to-day that the heaviest sea in years was running, with high wind and great surf. A fleet of coal-laden sailing vessels and some power boats was anchored in the "cow yard" of Plymouth Harbor, waiting for the storm to abate. Keen watch was kept all day for any vessels in distress.

FIVE FREE CONCERT FOR WORKINGMEN

Fifty men living at the Workingman's Home, No. 1,423 Washington street, last night enjoyed solos by Mme. Vinello John and Miss Ruth Bradley, violinist, and other interesting numbers of a free concert. This is the first of a series in charge of the program and all the participants donated their services to-day. Mrs. A. Cu. Sweet is the piano used. A Thanksgiving dinner will be served to-morrow to 150 men.

BROKEN NECK WELL; MAN GIVEN $5,000

PITCHBURG, Nov. 24.—Isaac Rosseau, a carpenter, whose neck was broken in May, 1907, by falling from a staging, has been saved from death by the physicians, but as his recovery is reincredible, and has recovered $5,000 damages for his injuries. He brought suit against the contractors for whom he worked.

SHOT BY FRIEND.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 24.—pursued by a man who claimed he had insulted his wife and friends, Robert Poulhan, 20, was shot to subbing where he had sought refuge. William E. Proctor, a politician, was shot and fatally wounded by R. M. Cully. The men had been friends.

VICTORIA IN LONDON.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Queen Victoria of Spain arrived here to-day on her hurried trip from Madrid to the bedside of her brother, Prince Leopold of Battenberg, who is seriously ill.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

FOREIGN SINGER WHO FOILED BOLD ROBBER IN STREET

The police were notified to-day that within a short distance of her home, Mrs. Marie Sevasly, a foreign singer and wife of Miram Sevasly, a foreign lawyer, practicing in Boston, was held up and robbed at 6:30 Monday evening as she was returning to her home on Amory street near School street, Jamaica Plain. The breaking to her home on Amory street, near Seattle saved her by attracting the thief's attention and giving her time to run into the street, where she attracted the attention of a man, who scared the thug away.

Mrs. Sevasly, who lives at No. 177 Amory street, said to-day: "As I was walking down Amory street, near School, about 6:30 Monday evening, on my way home, I saw two men coming toward me. One of the men seemed drunk. When they got within a few feet he lurched against me and tried to snatch my purse. In the struggle the gold chain holding my lorgnette was broken. I heard something strike the ground and thought it was money. The thief's attention was attracted to the ground, giving me time to escape from his grasp to the street, where I screamed for help."

DIE LIKE HERO OR GENTLEMAN, YALE'S SPIRIT

Yale spirit, as shown in the game with Harvard last Saturday, and Yale football eloquence are revealed in the final words to the Yale eleven November 20, 1897, before they went on the field to play Princeton, by George A. Ader, Yale, '67.

The welfare of the game demands that these three great universities shall set a bright example to the others by playing in the spirit of true gentlemen in word and deed. This spirit should be so cultivated as to become the best feature, the highest standard of the game, each eleven striving the other in trying to be square and honorable.

You are deserving of all praise, both for practically defeating Harvard and for maintaining this spirit and standard throughout that glorious game.

Of course you will again maintain it to-day. The immortal words from Thackeray's "End of the Play" ought to be in every player's heart, to grace threadbare with his old canvas jacket and the memories of victorious deeds on the gridiron:

"Hold Fast to Yale Sand."

Come wealth or want,
Come good or ill,
Let young and old accept their part
And bear it with an honest heart.
Who misses or who wins the prize,
Go lose or conquer as you can.
But if you fail, or if you win,
Be each, pour God, a gentleman.

So much for the spirit. Now for the action. Princeton openly expresses fear that Yale is not even good enough to give her a close game.

See to that!

Let Princeton find to her cost that your foot is the foot of the Elm, that your game has tempered and hardened every man of you into that fine, tried, invincible Yale football. Hold fast to your magnificent Yale spirit of discipline, and the teaching of your admirable coaches.

Keep your nerves about you from the very start. Be alert to seize upon every slip of the opponent and to retrieve every comrade's error. Stand the tackle-block of Gibraltar.

Like Heroes and Gentlemen.

Advance like the avalanche. With the coolness of Wellington in your hands and the fire of courage in every shire of your being.

The supreme hour of your life has come. In a few moments 10,000 Yale hearts will throb for you on that green. Every Yale man here would willingly shed blood to see you win.

And those girls in blue! Mothers, sisters, sweethearts, their confidence is over you now.

The loving worship of fair women for brave men which preserves the courage of the human race is yours.

One and all of them would tear out their heart strings to bring you victory.

Yale calls you.

Where Yale called there is no such word as fail.

Now go!

Do or die like heroes and gentlemen, and may the god of battles crown the blue with victory.

CABLE TO GET PLUM.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—United States Senator Cullom of Illinois, who was a visitor at the White House to-day, made the assertion that Benjamin F. Cable, a Chicago lawyer, will be appointed Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor, to succeed Ormsby McHarg.

RECIPE FOR CATARRH

The only logical treatment for catarrh is through the blood. A prescription, which has recently proved most successful in this work, is the following:

One ounce compound extract of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half-pint fluid-class whiskey. These to be mixed by shaking well in a bottle and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime. This cured many people here last winter.

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmacal Co. Obtainable here as well as the other ingredients, can be had from any good druggist, or he will quickly get them. Anyone can mix them.

CITY COUNCIL SLATE IS TO BE AMENDED

The City Council slate of nine adopted at last night's session of the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty is to be amended. Lack of representation from the first eight wards in the city and too much from the Improvement and Roxbury districts is found by the leaders.

Just whom to drop in what is puzzling the Committee. Some of the candidates have known to be willing to withdraw, in case of their election, to make room for others.

Clifford J. Attridge of Ward 9, Democrat, Good Government member of the Board of Aldermen.

Matthew Hale of Ward 11, Republican, Good Government member of the Board of Aldermen.

Harold J. Kenny of Ward 15, Democrat, lawyer, former member of the School Board.

Walter Ballantyne of Ward 17, Republican, hardware dealer, Good Government member of the Board of Aldermen.

Mark Stone of Ward 19, Democrat, lawyer, backed by Hibbard supporters.

Frederick J. Brand of Ward 20, Republican, felt dealer, Good Government member and chairman of the Board of Aldermen.

Walter R. Collins of Ward 20, Democrat, lawyer, former member of Governor's Council for one year; Harvard graduate.

Benjamin C. Lane of Ward 21, Republican, wholesale merchant, former member of Boston Common Council.

Walter B. Grant of Ward 24, Republican, lawyer, member of Republican City Committee; Columbia graduate.

Brand and Stone were also on the ticket recommended by the Committee of Nine, head by Nathan Matthews. Brand and Dolan of East Boston and Daniel J. Kane of Charlestown are also backed by the Matthews slate. Each of them was one who helped the key men to the slate recommended by the One Hundred and Fifty.

The Matthews committee, in the report to the full body, said that "each of the gentlemen suggested for the City Council is in close sympathy with the new charter." Politicians are surprised at the statement that Attridge of Ward 9 and Matthew Hale of Ward 11 were tied even to the right of the new charter.

The case with which the Matthews slate was assembled by the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty also caused surprise in political circles. Friends of Matthews say that last night's rain caused many members of the One Hundred and Fifty who would have supported the Matthews ticket to stay away from the meeting at the Wellesley Hall.

Leaders of the Republican City Committee said to-day that they are not satisfied with the City Council slate of the committee. They would like to name a candidate or two themselves. Some of these threaten to support Mrs. Bull against David A. Ellis.

The nomination of Mark Stone of Ward 19, a Democratic machine politician, is a foolish vote for the whole committee ticket, caused quiet comment to-day. Stone is one of the strongest critics of the "good people" of Ward 19, and this move are taken that "men should be nominated because of ability and not because of race, creed or color."

GOODWIN IN FIGHT DESPITE MATTHEWS

Councilman Frank A. Goodwin of East Boston declared to-day that the refusal of the Committee of Nine, headed by Nathan Matthews to indorse him for the new City Council is the best thing that has yet happened to help his candidacy.

"If Mr. Matthews had indorsed me, I would have refused to accept his indorsement. I don't think anyone can say it is because of 'sour grapes,' he said to-day.

"I would have been surprised," he says, "if my candidacy had been indorsed by a committee controlled and dominated by Nathan Matthews, because I have told some of the Matthews people just that. Fortunately, under the provisions of the law made by the people at the polls on November 2, I do not have to seek a nomination from political bosses or professional tax-dodgers.

"My nomination will come directly from more than 5,000 citizens, many of whom have had their tax burdens increased because of the failure of Matthews and his kind to pay their just share.

"It may also be stated that I do not expect, nor desire, the indorsement of the Good Government Association. That annex to the 'Blackboard party' is owned and controlled by the Moses Williamses and the Lawrence Minots, and it is too much to expect that they will permit an approval of my attitude in exposing the Copley Square deals and other big trust transactions through which the city lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in unpaid taxes.

MAYOR HIBBARD AND TILLEY NEAR CLASH

A clash is imminent between Mayor Hibbard and David F. Tilley. Tilley is secretary of the Citizens' Municipal League and executive secretary of the Hibbard campaign committee. He is also a member of the Sinking Fund Commission of the city of Boston. Mayor Hibbard has declared that city officials must not, during the city's time for campaign work, "Mr. Tilley will receive his salary from the Storrow campaign committee," Mayor's Secretary James J. White said to-day. "Mr. Tilley has not heard from Mayor Hibbard, and until Mr. Tilley does, Mr. Tilley will say nothing about it." Mr. Tilley himself said to-day:

McNAMARA CLUB FOR FITZGERALD

The Douglas Club of Ward 15, of which Jeremiah J. McNamara, treasurer of the Democratic City Committee, is leader, has been unanimously indorsed for John F. Fitzgerald for Mayor. Their action is one of the big surprises thus far in the mayoralty campaign. McNamara was one of James Donovan's closest friends and strongest lieutenants. Politicians to-day pointed to the fact that McNamara attended none of the conferences of Democratic leaders called by President Donovan of the Democratic City Committee.

NOTES IN POLITICS WITHOUT PARTIES

East Boston will now have to fight it out between Alderman Thomas J. Gibbs, Democrat, and Councilman Frank A. Goodwin, Republican, as to who will be the Noddle Island representative in the next city council. Dr. Unsworth made quite a fight for Gibbs at last night's meeting, and even Nathan Matthews put the name of his persistent foe upon his ballot, but he only received eighteen votes. "I am satisfied I can win without the Matthews and the Laurence Minots," said Goodwin after the conference.

The most classy thing in the arterial line that has yet been introduced into the campaign is Dr. Duff's white fedora. The M. D. has been active in securing the signatures that his wife has been making for a school committee nomination, and his scene with Kelley in his auto bids fair to figure of prominence wherever he has solicited a signature.

Alderman "Mutt" Hale's campaign manager, Jeremiah Moore of Ward 11, was present at the meeting of the 150 which endorsed his candidate and his brand spelling of the word "Mutt." Moore, in the quarters of Storrow as an enterprising and overjoyed agent and "spieler" in charge of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald on the gala day of Fitzgerald's triumph as the former Mayor's rival. The picture of John F. was underlined "Mayor of Boston, 1910-1914."

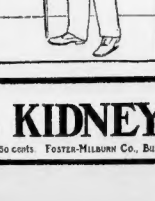
William J. Power, leader of the "Pipers" and a friend of George Bowen, one of his lieutenants, are said to be the boomers of Judge Thomas C. Dowd of Ward 20, as the other element of the "Pipers" faction is with Senator James Fitzgerald. Dowd is those supposed to be anti-O'Connell and for Fitzgerald.

Just how the committee of 150 expects to get 5,000 signatures for those named on its nonenclusable slate is puzzling some of the practical "pols." Anybody who has already signed a single nomination paper for a candidate for the city council cannot legally sign another. So the large slate of nine and a number of small bets will be less inside of the list that the slate will not secure the necessary number of signatures to make the combination all upon it.

Mayor Hibbard's campaign managers and ex-Mayor Fitzgerald's agent yesterday had a "pow wow" at campaign headquarters. They have found that the buildings are the large of having a campaign headquarters located there and are encountered considerable difficulty in securing offices. Mayor Hibbard's friends state that his will be opened the latter part of the week and Fitzgerald anticipates getting his opened the first of next week.

ONLY ONE WAY TO SHAKE IT OFF

Backache Will Get Worse and Worse Until the Kidneys Are Cured.



Backache in the small of the back, or across the back. No rest, no sleep, no peace at all. It begins in the morning, when you get up from bed so lame, sore and stiff that it is hard to bend over to put your shoes on.

All day there is a heavy, dull, throbbing pain in the small of the back, just over the kidneys. It hurts to bend over, to lift anything or even to get up from a chair. Any sudden, awkward movement sends a sharp, darting twinge through the sore spot.

When night comes the sufferer retires to fitful sleep, can't lie comfortably in any one position, or turn over without a painful effort.

Don't look at backache as merely a muscular pain, that will pass away with rest. There is a deeper trouble. Nine times out of ten it is the kidneys that throb and ache, and there can be no relief until the kidneys are given help.

The kidneys have a big work to do. All the blood in the body is coursing through the kidney filters constantly, to be freed of uric poisons. It is a heavy enough task when the kidneys are well, but a cold, chill, fever, or some thoughtless exposure, or overindulgence in liquor, tea, beer or coffee, is likely at any time to irritate, inflame and congest the kidneys, and interrupt the purifying work.

Then the aching begins, and is usually accompanied with some irregularity of the urine—too frequent passages, sediment in the urine, scanty, painful passages, or blood in the urine.

Thousands testify to the wonderful merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy for the kidneys only, that nearly quickly cures the kidneys, regulates the urine, and drives backache out for good.

James Conner, 190 Broadway, Boston, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are surely of the highest recommendation I can give them. About ten years ago I suffered with pain in my right side which gradually extended into my back and left kidney. I was also bothered by a frequent desire to pass the kidney secretions and any slight jar caused sharp twinges to shoot through my back. Soon after beginning to use Doan's Kidney Pills I felt better, and before long my suffering was entirely relieved. Since then I have used them on a further trial and it has never failed to bring the same prompt and satisfactory results. Whenever I have been asked about Doan's Kidney Pills it has given me pleasure to speak highly of them and advise their use."

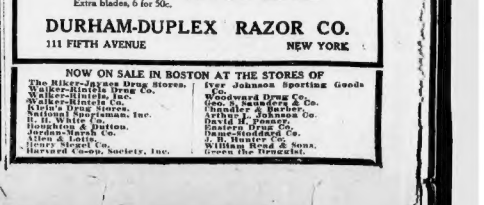
The Wrapper Doesn't Touch the Edge of Durham-Duplex Blades

That is why they are sharper than the interchangeable blades of other razors. Other blades may be given a sharp edge at the factory, but it is dulled by contact with the wrapper before you use the blades.

The edge of Durham-Duplex Blades cannot come in contact with the wrapper, because the blades are hung suspended in their patented protective folder, by means of little tabs passing through the slit in the center of each blade; and thus their keen edge is preserved. These blades are made of the highest grade Swedish steel.



DURHAM-DUPLEX RAZOR

gives you not only the best blades, but also the best way of using them. It is the only razor that combines the correct sliding diagonal stroke with the safety-guard—enabling you to shave correctly and with safety.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN GREATER CITY CROWDED WITH VARIED EVENTS

With special matinees at the theatres and a number of hotly contested football games scheduled, Thanksgiving day will furnish means of recreation for many Greater Boston people. The day will be a general business holiday, all of the banks and business houses closing, and there will be no publication of evening newspapers.

In the morning there will be a number of special masses in Catholic churches. Governor Draper and his staff will attend the special military mass at 9 o'clock at the Cathedral for living and deceased members of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M. The 9th Regiment will parade to and from the church under command of Colonel Frank J. Foster will be celebrated by Archbishop O'Connell.

Field Union Service.

A solemn high mass will be celebrated at St. Patrick's Church, Dudley street, Roxbury, at 9:30 a. m. for deceased members of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society.

There will be a unique union Thanksgiving service at 11:15 a. m. at the Temple Israel on Commonwealth avenue, which will be attended by members of the congregation of the Temple and of the Second Church (Unitarian). Rev. Samuel Hart Van Nuss, preacher of the Second Church, will make the address at the service, which will be conducted by Rabbi Fleischer, rabbi of the Temple.

The afternoon events include the big football games, the matinees at the theatres and the "1915" Exposition and the Electrical Show, which are also open at night. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will talk on "The Chivalry of the Irish Race" to the members of Division No. 4, A. O. H., in Sherwood Hall, No. 188 Hanover street.

In the evening St. Mary's Catholic Association will give its annual Lenten ball in aid of its building fund in Aquinas Hall, corner of Norfolk and Harvard streets, Cambridge. The play to be given is "30 New Curtis."

K. of C. Dancing Party.

The members of St. James Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold a dancing party in the afternoon and early evening in Copley Hall, in the Plaza Building, Copley Square. The tenth annual ball of Division No. 4, A. O. H., will be held in the evening in Hibernian Hall, Union and Lenox streets, Charlestown.

Tremont Temple will unite with Park Street Church and hold a Thanksgiving day service at the Temple at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Courtland Myers and the Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad will make addresses. The Lotos Male Quartet will furnish the music.

Noddle Island Hibernians will turn out in large numbers to attend the annual concert, reunion and ball of Division 2, A. O. H., in Hibernian Hall, Havre street, East Boston.

Division No. 36, A. O. H., of Medford, events, will hold a celebration in Independence Hall, Somerville, in the afternoon. Prominent speakers will talk on the lives of Allen, Larkin and O'Brien. A concert of Irish music will entertain the audience.

Division No. 60 will hold a dance in St. Rose Hall, No. 17 Worcester street, South End, in the afternoon, the proceeds of which will go towards the sick and death benefit fund.

Roxbury Total Abstinence Association, No. 3, of Brookline, will listen in the evening to Thomas F. Phelan, "The Benefits of Men and Nations." The affair will be held in Lorcom Hall, Village square.

Requiem services in memory of the deceased members of the married men's Sodality of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Harrison avenue, will be held in that edifice in the morning. The mass will be sung by the spiritual director.

Minstrel Show by Boys.

In the afternoon and evening the boys and girls of St. John's Parochial School, Roxbury, will give a minstrel show in St. John's Hall, Bine Hill avenue.

The annual theatricals of the Father Matthew Total Abstinence Society of East Cambridge will be held in St. John's Hall, Fenwick street, in the evening. The sketch, comedy entitled "The Inoculator," written by Leon Dudman, will be produced. It will be preceded the following night. The affair will commence the sixteenth anniversary of the organization.

St. John's Literary Institute of the same city will present the four-act military drama, "The Girl I Left Behind Me," in their hall on Cambridge street, afternoon and evening.

The Young Men's Catholic Association will hold a whist party in the music room of Boston College in the evening.

Branch 81, Patrick of the Irish National Foresters' Benefit Society will hold an entertainment in the afternoon in Warren Hall, No. 97 Warren street, Roxbury.

The following officers of the order will be the invited guests.

THE CHIEF'S THANKSGIVING

By Wex Jones

IN Bombillon the beautiful, where grub seems pretty cheap,
There was once a big eating festival for the well-fed blacks to keep;
Imagine barbarism so deep that people don't eat
On certain set occasions till their stomachs rebel "Enough!"

They never heard of "Thanksgiving," and Christmas Day went by Without scores of little children in agony from pie.

And so no one dint Bombiloo, like Cyclon's spicy lee,
Was full of pleasing prospects and natives only me.

Now Bangaroo the chieftain was a lazy sort of bloke,
And save when ordering more gin he very seldom spoke;
So the missionary of the isle was stunned, to say the least,
When he read the proclamation for a grand Thanksgiving feast:

"To show our thanks for cocoanuts, bananas, eggs and fish,
That every family of a turk (said the chieftain, is one wish."

And great the shouting that ensued, for corkeys relished quite high,
Yet he who dared to go without roast Bangaroo must die.

The day appointed came at last, for days are seldom late,
And all the Bombilloons religiously ate.
They ate and ate and ate and ate like Fletcherizing cranks,
Determined the Americans to chew their hearty thanks.

And Bangaroo the chieftain by the mile upon a stretcher was carried;
How glad they were his heathen heart at last was civilized.

And Bangaroo—oh, he just smiled, because he owned the works—

STATE OFFICERS PROBE CHELSEA FIRE

State Officer Silas Smith was in Chelsea to-day investigating the fire in the three-story wooden building at No. 70 Hurd street, just beyond the line of the 1908 conflagration. The upper floors are occupied by David Rosenthal, owner of the building, and his family. The first floor is occupied by Garabed Thekhin's restaurant. The fire was discovered in the restaurant kitchen at 1:30 a. m. today by Joseph Silver, watchman for a neighboring shoe factory.

ANATOLE FRANCE OBJECTS TO ALFONSO

PARIS, Nov. 24.—A sensation was caused in scientific circles to-day by the demand of Anatole, France, the famous author, that King Alfonso be excluded from the proposed honorary membership in the French astronomical society because the king "was morally guilty at the death of Francisco Ferrer." The author threatens to resign if Alfonso is elected.

RECLUSE IS FOUND DEAD IN HOUSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Possessing a fortune of many thousands, William Fernald, seventy-six years old, was found to-day dying of starvation and cold in a barely furnished room in the house he owned at No. 476 Marcy avenue, Brooklyn. After his death of his wife he turned recluse.

When The Stomach Stops

Working Properly, Because There Is Wind In It, Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to Set It Going Again.

A Trial Box Free.

THE DOCTORS call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distressing state of things it is. It is a serious condition of this great motor organ. Always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to bad and fatal results. The stomach embarrassed and hampered with gases cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows. And this has a train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable boon.

ALL THIS IS EXPLAINED in doctor books; how undigested food causes gases by fermentation and fomentation, in which process some essential fluids are destroyed—burnt up—wasted by chemical action, followed by defective nutrition and the distribution, through the alimentary tract of chemically strong elements, and as a consequence the stomach and entire system is starved. Plenty of food you see, but spoilt in preparation and worse than worthless.

A DERANGED STOMACH is the epitome of evil; nothing too bad to emanate from it, but the gas it generates is probably its worst primary effect, and the only way to do away with this is no remedy at all times. STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS go to the root of this trouble. They attack the gas making foods and render them harmless. Flatulency or wind on the stomach simply cannot exist where these powerful and wonderworking little tablets are in evidence.

THEY WERE MADE for this very purpose, to attack gas-making foods and convert them into palatable nutrient. This is their province and office. A whole book could be written about them and then not all could that might be told with profit to sufferers from this painful disease, dyspepsia. It would mention the years of patient and expensive experiment in effort to arrive at this result—or failures innumerable and at last success. It would make mention of the different stomach correctives that enter into this tablet and make it faithfully represent all.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS are not alone intended for the sick, but well folks as well; for the person who craves hearty foods and likes to eat heartily and run no risk of bad effects they act like a charm and make eating and digestion a delight and pleasure. They keep the stomach active and energetic and able and willing to do extra work without special labor or effort. Don't forget this. Well people are often neglected, but the STUART DYSPEPSIA TABLETS have them in mind.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE will be sent any one who wants to know just what they are. Now they look like, taste, before localizing treatment with them. After this go to the drug store for them; every druggist has one or at home, they are 50 cents a box, and by getting them at home you will save time and postage. Your doctor will prescribe them; they say there are 40,000 doctors using them, but when you know what is the matter of yourself, why go to the expense of a prescription? For free trial package, address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Michigan.

P. S. Better send today for samples of the tablet. You will get quite a box of them.

THERE'S A REASON

TURKEYS JUST A LITTLE OFF

The price of turkeys dropped two and three cents a pound on all grades to-day. Despite this drop thousands of Bostonians who ate ruined their Thanksgiving Day will not do so to-morrow, as they consider the prices exorbitant and have purchased chickens and domestic ducks instead.

Fresh killed Vermont turkeys are selling at from 25 to 28 cents a pound to-day. Yesterday they sold at from 28 to 30 cents. Western turkeys again have been in cold storage are selling at from 20 to 25 cents. The price yesterday was from 23 to 25 cents.

The price of fowl, chicken, ducks, geese and game remains the same to-day as it was yesterday. Chickens are selling at from 25 to 28 cents fowl, from 20 to 22 cents; domestic duck, 25 cents; green geese, 15 to 25 cents, and venison from 45 to 50 cents, according to the cut.

Boston's market district was crowded with shoppers to-day. The rain had little effect on the number of sales.

A turkey dinner for six people to-morrow in Boston will cost $5.24, according to some marketmen. The cost will be divided as follows: Ten pounds of turkey, $3.50; one bunch of celery, 15 cents; two pounds sweet potatoes, eight cents; one quart cranberries, eight cents; five pounds squash, 20 cents; two quarts onions, eight cents; home-made mince pie, 40 cents; mixed pumpkin pudding, 50 cents; one dozen oranges, 25 cents.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

SEIZED TOO MUCH LIQUOR, SAYS COURT

That an officer may seize more liquor than a search warrant calls for, confessing the amount stated in the warrant and then return the rest, was decided by the full bench of the Supreme Court to-day in overruling the exceptions of William J. Mahern, who conducted a drug store in Framingham, which was raided. One hundred and twelve gallons of whiskey was taken, and in the Superior Court it was brought out that the warrant called for only one hundred. The court decided that one hundred gallons should be confiscated and the other twelve returned. Majority contended that the seizure was illegal because the amount taken was in excess of that called for in the warrant. The Supreme Court ruled against him.

OXFORD PROFESSOR SKEPTICAL OF COOK

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Dr. H. H. Turner, Savilian Professor of Astronomy at Oxford University, in a lecture on "The Possible Evidence of Having Reached the North Pole," said:

"Peary's records, as given in his first report, exhibited a natural and convincing simplicity, while Cook's similar records were marred by needless superfluous and probably unattainable accuracy in the records of longitude, and suggested a lack of acquaintance with the phenomena at the pole."

RECOVER BODY OF MAN IN MERRIMAC

NEWBURYPORT, Nov. 24. The body of David McKenzie, one of the two men drowned at the old chain ferry over the Merrimac, two miles above this city, was recovered to-day by David Morrill, who had been dragging the river.

HADLEY HURT HUNTING.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 24.—Governor Hadley, who has been hunting in the Taney county hunting preserves, was forced to leave for Jefferson City on account of a badly swollen hand, caused by a fall.

BACKACHE GOES AND KIDNEYS ACT FINE AFTER TAKING A FEW DOSES.

No man or woman here whose kidneys are out-of-order or who suffers backache or bladder misery can afford to leave Pape's Diuretic untried.

After taking several doses, all pains in the back, sides or loins, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, dizziness, tired or worn-out feeling or other symptoms of clogged, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, discolored water and all bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect the slightest kidney or bladder disorder, or feel rheumatism pains, don't continue to be miserable or worried, but get a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic from your druggist and start taking as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so prompt and positive a cure.

This unusual preparation goes direct to the cause of trouble, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected and completes the cure before you realize it.

Each ingredient of Pape's Diuretic means clean, healthy, active kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and reputable medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

ARMY TO BE HOST TO 5000 TO-MORROW

The annual Thanksgiving dinner for children and basket dinners for poor families will be given tomorrow by the Salvation Army. The opposition of the overseers of the poor, which it was feared would limit the dinner to-morrow to a small number of people, has been completely overcome by the generous response of the public.

To-night, when the funds were all in and counted, the money received for the Thanksgiving dinner from the collection boxes, from individuals by mail allowed to the army and all other sources amounted to $2,500. It was feared long before the official opposition against the army developed that $1,200 could be raised this year, but the opposition caused funds to come in faster than ever before, with the result that there will be an abundant Thanksgiving for the 5000 people cared for to-morrow by the army.

Thanksgiving Menu.

Dinners will be given to-morrow to 5,000 children and members of families.

At 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning 100 baskets containing supplies for a complete Thanksgiving dinner for five people will be given out at People's Palace on Washington and East Brookline streets, South End.

Here is what each one of these baskets will contain:

Chicken, five pounds
Potatoes	Onions
Turnips	Celery
Cranberry Sauce	Bread
Can of Condensed Milk	Coffee
Can of Tomatoes	Sugar

These baskets will be given out to look after the families. Fifty Salvation Army workers have been at work throughout the poor sections of Boston, Roxbury and Cambridge for two weeks seeking out those who need a good Thanksgiving dinner, and left tickets to each of these families. By these basket dinners alone more than 2,500 persons, members of families, will be made happy to-morrow.

At People's Palace.

The big dinner for children between the ages of 2 and 14 years comes at 11:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, when 2,500 children and their mothers will sit down to eat with them will be given a good dinner by the Salvation Army. Turkey and the usual fixings have also been distributed among worthy poor children by members of the army. The menu of this dinner is as follows:

Turkey		Bread	Bread Chicken
Mashed Potatoes		Baked Beef	Pickles
Mashed turnips		Lettuce	Onions
Gravy		Cranberry Sauce	Apples
Nuts	Cocoa	Candy

CHARGE VAST SWINDLE GAME

FREDERICTON, N. B., Nov. 23.—An alleged swindle whereby Canadian merchants buy the local weekly newspaper, it is stated, has resulted in the arrest of one man and the discovery of what the authorities claim is a conspiracy among a number of men.

William J. Agnew, who was arrested at Canterbury, N. B., and released on furnishing bail, is one of the men charged, in company with several associates, goods to the value of about $25,000 from merchants in this province and from Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John, Halifax and other Canadian cities. They paid part cash on account and the greater part of the goods on thirty days' credit. When the drafts were not paid at the expiration of thirty days, the merchants notified the authorities and warrants for seizure under the so-called absconding debtors' act were issued.

ATHOL GIRL DIED OF NATURAL CAUSES

ATHOL, Nov. 24. The body of Miss Sophia Glendelis, the girl who died November 17 from exhaustion, and an autopsy held by Medical Examiner Oliver, Dr. Oliver gave the statement to-day that he found that the girl died from natural causes. The lungs were diseased and dropsy was the cause of death.

FLEISCHER DENOUNCES RACE LINES

Rabbi Charles Fleischer of the Temple Israel, Commonwealth avenue, objects strongly to the practice of race and religion line either municipal, state or national politics. In a statement to-day he declares positively his disapprobation of the injection of the racial and religious status of any candidate as that which appeared last night at the meeting of the Municipal League when the nomination of Mark Stone was demanded for the City Council.

In his statement he says:

"Any idea of demanding representation in Council for race and religion is unknown in this country in America. Fitness for office should be the only qualification required of a candidate for any place. The fact whether that candidate is a Jew or an Irishman does not enter at all into the question.

I am the more concerned and disgusted when I find that the Irish and the Jews undertake to secure so-called representation for any of the city in any office.

Will Oppose Such Men.

"As for myself, I will give my hearty opposition to any man, be he Jew or Christian, who is chosen to represent an element or race.

It is about as amusing as it is pathetic to find Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Hurley objecting because he has not his quota and Mr. Hurley actually saying from the pulpit, point of view, a Jew ceases to be a Jew if he is a good citizen. That is a good, although a sane and citizen.

There is no such thing as the Jewish race. There is no more individualistic or independent man in the city of Boston than the Jews, and I hold that it is an insult to their intelligence to speak of them as though they could be controlled and herded together.

"The Jews are here and there and boxes and handcuffs among the Jews who would like to get rid of their Jewish names, but them that they may be able to vote in place of them as the other Americans, but they are not to be seriously regarded as creeping in their pockets the vote of any appreciable number of Jews. You might as well talk of the blonde or the brunette vote as the Jewish vote.

Will Prove a Boomerang.

"I think that it will be found that whether or not Mr. Fitzgerald or Mr. Hibbard attempt to get a supposed Jewish vote in the mass by playing politics for it, they will find their efforts returned to them as a dangerous boomerang.

"As to the Irish, he may or may not be a good man for the Council, but if I learn that he was put in nomination because he is a Jew I shall for that one reason consider him unfit and work and vote against him.

Mr. Ellis, on the other hand, I have known to be an ideal man for the School Committee although apart from this no ideal and religious affiliations, but I am glad whenever I find that the Jews of Boston have responded a type as he is of useful citizenship."

WEATHER TO BE FAIR, COLD

A fair, and cold Thanksgiving.

That is the prospect, as given out to-day by the local weather bureau.

It is cheerful news for the thousands of Bostonians who have been eyeing to-day's dismal weather dubiously and wondering whether they would have to eat their holiday turkey to an obligato of wailing winds and pattering rain drops.

The forecast is brief but promising. It reads:

"Fair and cooler Thursday."

It failed to state whether the sun spot "it will be seasonable Thanksgiving weather. The present storm is scheduled to blow itself out to sea to-night, leaving clear weather and lower temperature in Boston."

20,000 NOW OUT IN SHIRTWAIST STRIKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The leaders in the shirtwaist workers' strike to-day called out 5,000 more girl workers, making a total of 20,000 that are now engaged in a labor struggle against the manufacturers' association. The strikers are fighting for better wages, better hours and better working conditions. The action affected 250 of the shops in Greater New York. One thousand cutters and pressers struck in sympathy with the shirtwaist makers.

FOUR BIG SUNDAY Y. M. C. A. MEETINGS

Four great Sunday meetings are to be held at the Tremont Theatre under auspices of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, beginning next Sunday afternoon at 3:00. Four well-known men have been secured. Next Sunday Alexander Irvine, lay ministers of the Church of the Ascension of New York is to speak on "Men I Escaped from the Upper World." The week's speakers will be: December 5, Dr. Charles R. Erdman of Princeton Theological Seminary; December 12, Hon. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto; December 19, Dr. Clarence A. Birdseye of Rochester, N. Y.

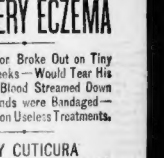
BABY'S TERRIBLE WATERY ECZEMA

Itching Humor Broke Out on Tiny Mite's Cheeks—Would Tear His Face Till Blood Streamed Down Unless Hands were Bandaged—Spent $50 on Useless Treatments.

CURED BY CUTICURA AT COST OF BUT $1.50



"When our little boy was two and a half months old he broke out on both cheeks with eczema. It was the itchy, watery kind and we had to keep his little hands wrapped up all the time, and what happen to get them to his covered he would claw his face till the blood streamed down on his clothing. We called in a physician at once, but he gave an ointment which was so severe that my husband screams when it was put on. We changed doctors and consulted the best in the city; they dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so weary of watching and caring for him night and day that I almost felt sure the disease was incurable. But finally reading of the good results of the Cuticura Remedies, I determined to try them. I can truthfully say I was more than surprised, for I bought only a dollar and a half's worth of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and before they could be applied to the sores I could see a change. In three months I had tried, and in fact entirely cured him. I will send you a photograph taken when he was seven months old and you can see his face is perfectly clear of the least spot or scar of anything. If I ever have this trouble again, I will never think of doctoring but will send for the Cuticura Remedies at once. As it is, I would never think of using any other than Cuticura Soap for my babe. You are at liberty to publish this, it may help some distressed mother as I was helped. Mrs. W. M. Conderee, Burnt Cabins, Pa., Sept. 13, 1908."

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Ointment (50c.), Resolvent (50c.), and Chocolate Coated Pills (25c.), are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27, Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, 5 Elizabeth St., Sydney; India, Lall Bazar; China, Hong Kong; Japan, Maruya, Ltd., Tokio. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, Boston. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases," Free, Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

COVERING BOSTON—To "cover" a big city like Boston in an advertising sense costs a lot of money, and few concerns can afford it.

There is absolutely only one way to reach practically everybody in town uniformly, steadily and at a LOW COST.

That's poster advertising on the L structure.

Seventy-five big readable signs (60x48 inches) cost only Seventy-five dollars a month—one dollar each.

This means a strong showing at all elevated stations and especially the great transfer points, Sullivan Sq., Dudley St., Forest Hills, North Station, South Station and Rowe's Wharf.

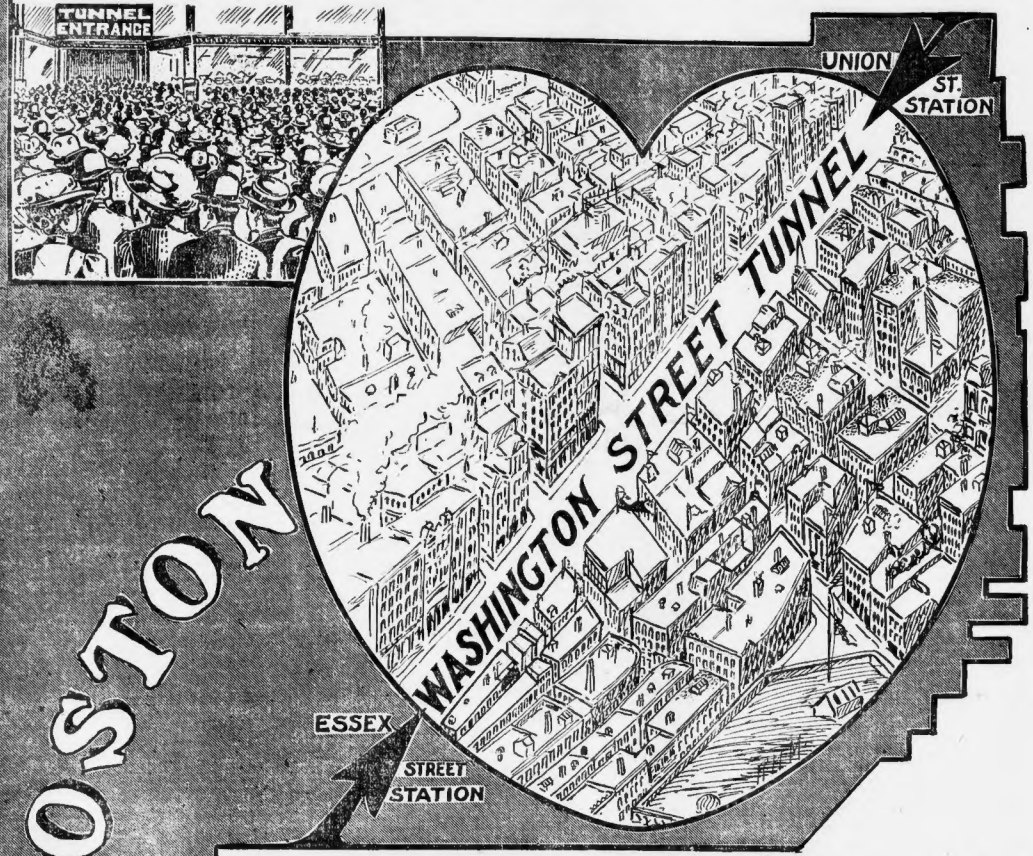
THE WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL

The most beautiful underground passageway in the world, extends from Essex to Union Streets, and comprises eight (8) Subway Stations, with exits and entrances. It leads from end to end of the busiest down-town district of the city, and lies, as it were, at the very threshold of Boston's leading office buildings, department stores, hotels, theatres, railroad stations, etc.



850 Locations

for one-sheet advertising posters are about evenly and conspicuously distributed on the walls and in the exits and entrances of the Washington Street Tunnel's eight stations.

These spaces have been bid for by some of the largest advertisers in the country.

They have been applied for by scores of general advertisers, advertising agencies, etc.

Now that they are being formally offered, for the first time, to the general advertising public, they will undoubtedly be contracted for in rapid succession by shrewd publicity-seekers.

As these poster-spaces are limited in number, not more than fifty yearly contracts can be made.

Many will undoubtedly apply for them only to find they have already been leased.

You will act wisely to file your application without delay for as many spaces as you will want during 1910.

Positively the Best Advertising in Boston!

The value of any advertising poster depends almost entirely upon where such poster is placed. Environment, "circulation," weather conditions, light, etc., are elements of vital importance. The stations in the WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL are brilliantly lighted by electricity both day and night. The platforms are broad and spacious, permitting passengers to walk up and down and examine our subway posters at their leisure while waiting for trains. No weather conditions such as rain, snow, wind or cold affect advertising "value" in the WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL, unless it is to attract more travelers into these protected stations. The poster locations are orderly arranged, every space being surrounded by a brass frame, while those on the platform walls are also surrounded by attractive mosaic borders. Can there be a more ideal environment, a more dignified background, as constant a display and altogether as valuable an advertising opportunity as that afforded poster advertisers in the WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL—Boston's greatest concourse, into, through and out of which nearly half a million persons travel every day? You can reach SOME of these people one way, and SOME in another, but you will have to advertise in the WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL to reach them ALL. In fact, you would have to advertise in every Boston newspaper, in every Boston program, in every Boston street car, on every Boston fence and wall, to reach the MULTITUDES that you can reach, and ONLY reach, from poster advertising in this great artery of human travel, into which Boston's great net work of lesser arteries lead. WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL

How to Use It and Its Connections

The Washington Street Tunnel, between Haymarket Square on the north and Eliot and Kneeland Streets on the south, has eight stations. These stations with their thirty entrances and exits amount to almost a continuous station under Washington Street. From them it is only a few steps to retail stores, business offices, hotels, theatres, public buildings, institutions, courts, historic buildings and points, banks, banking houses, clubs, newspaper offices, the Post Office, the Stock Exchange, the Relief Hospital, the markets, churches, and other places of resort. Indeed, there are nowhere else in the world so many points of equal interest so accessible to any rapid transit thoroughfare.

Yet many do not appreciate the availability of these stations. Many do not know where to find the entrances most convenient for their own use and others are unaware of the superiority of this line over some of the surface lines.

In order that our patrons may have a better knowledge of the facilities supplied by this Tunnel, we are publishing information concerning each of the stations.

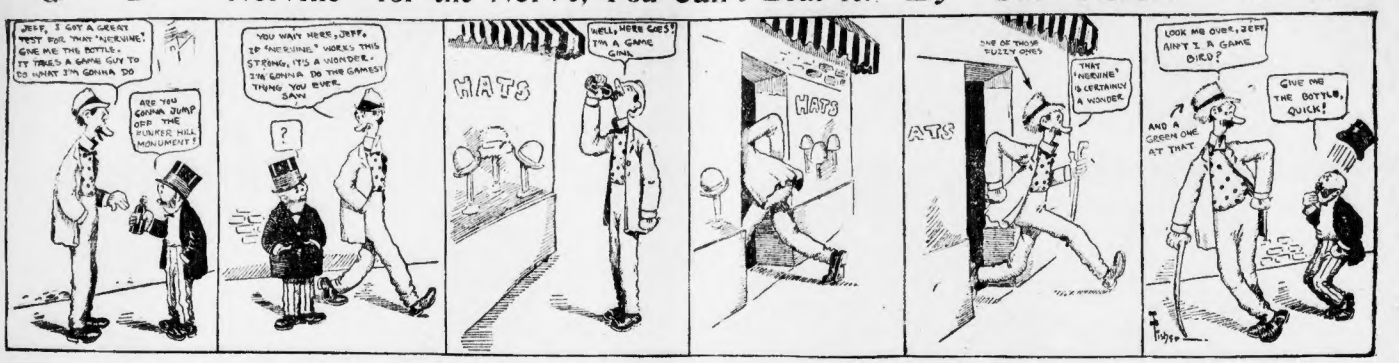
BARRY PUTS AWAY CALLOWAY IN TEN ROUNDS

"Nervine" for the Nerve; You Can't Beat It!—By "Bud" Fisher.



POWELL EXPECTED TO BE FAVORITE OVER WOLGAST

By H. M. Walker.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—Ad Wolgast is branded in sixty-three different places with the "Class" mark. The Dutch Demon is destined to make a lot of trouble for the lightweight, which division Wolgast has invaded with such pronounced success.

There is still a featherweight chip carried bravely on Ad's best shoulder. He openly offers to train down to 122 pounds any time that Ade Attell cares to desert the "Sucker Belt" and defend his title in a real ringfest against a real fighter.

Wolgast, together with his shrewd manager, "Cherokee" Tom Jones, are in San Francisco, where the Cadillac citizen is scheduled to box Tom Powell on November 20, at the Coliseum, which place is presided over by Matchmaker Sid Hester of "two round trip tickets" fame.

A stop-over made at Los Angeles to permit a conference with Promoter T. J. McCarey. Wolgast was anxious to secure a second match with Bartling Nelson, which is not to be wondered at considering the ease with which Ad handed the lightweight champion a convincing defeat on July 12 last. McCarey is anxious to get this go.

Local Sports Favor Wolgast.

From the tone of the news telegrams it is easy to see that the San Francisco sporting public has not appreciated Wolgast's fighting ability at its true value. It has been intimated that Ad will be the short ender in the 10 to 8 betting that will prevail in Naughton's town. Were the Wolgast-Powell bout a local event the Dutchman would rule a favorite at approximately these same figures, which proves that the question of geography has a great deal to do with the fixing of odds in a fistic specialation.

Jones's protege possesses that powerful pugilistic persuader—the knockout punch. It is this one asset which makes Ad such a tempting proposition, and he is a fine fighter, not a boxer. By this it is not meant that Wolgast is a blind master of the art, but he has variety enough to box as cleverly as the average top-notcher, but when a fight to the decision route is the order of last resort with Ad. His aim is to deliver quality from the start for the knock out or "stop" his opponent while the getting is easiest (time limit).

Powell is weighing close around the 134-pound mark and purposes truing lightly so as not to weigh under 130 pounds when he enters the ring. He will not spar today, but will do a little work on the road.

One Glass of Beer a Day.

Cy Myrick is back in Los Angeles after having accompanied Jim Jeffries abroad and spent several weeks with the big fellow at Carlsbad and Paris. Cy is the biggest Jeffries booster in the country. Listen to him for five minutes and you can almost imagine that you see Jack Johnson flat on the floor, being counted out.

"None of the stories concerning Jim's buffeting have been in the least exaggerated," says Cy. "If anything, not enough credit has been given Jeff for the hard work he has done and the wonderful results he has accomplished.

"According to a statement which Cy whispered, it would cost Jeffries $5000 if he were so much as to sip three drops of wine. Jim may enjoy one glass of beer a day, but Mrs. Jeffries is the judge, and one stein of "chops" must be taken with his dinner.

This agreement has been made between Jeff and Cy, and Mrs. Jeffries is the judge. "If Jim's form ratches him breaking the pledge she will advise Cy at once, and she will, because she gets half of the $5000 if Jeff ever takes an extra swallow over his allowance."

WEBSTER LICKS FAST HORSES MONTE ATTELL IN FIVE RACES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 24.—The Attel boys will have to be satisfied with one having one world championship in the family. Monte failed dismally in his efforts to wrest the bantamweight championship from Danny Webster in the Naud Junction ring of the Pacific A. C.

The finish of the scheduled ten-round bout found both boys on their feet fighting away furiously, but Webster had outfought the game little Hebrew and was entitled to the decision.

Monte's only hope to come back is to demand a longer fight.

The nearest approach to a knockdown occurred early in the first round, when Webster landed a left swing to the jaw, sending Monte back across the lower ropes.

Calloway Outclassed All the Way in Armory A. A. Fight

BARRY GETS KNOCKOUT IN TENTH

No fighter ever went out cleaner than Ralph Calloway, the California colored heavyweight in the tenth round of his bout with Jim Barry, the Chicago boxer, in their match at the Armory A. A.

The end of the little battle, which was conceded in favor of Barry from the opening round came suddenly when the latter landed good for Calloway going the full distance.

At the end of the ninth round Calloway was knocked down for the count and the bell saved him. He was in no condition to respond to the tenth period, but his seconds sent him up. Barry knew he had his man and inside of a few seconds Calloway was a limp mass on the mat, practically dead to the world as a result of a couple of right and left crashes to the jaw that Barry sent over as soon as Calloway got out of his chair.

Coast Man All In.

The coast fighter was dragged to his seat by his handlers who used every means to restore consciousness in him, but he did not respond to the simple remedies administered and had to be carried from the ring where it was some time before he revived.

Early in the bout Calloway received a battering on the nose and mouth that caused both to bleed freely. The blood kept choking him and when the knockout came his breathing organs were completely clogged up.

The fusion man never had a show after the first bell, as Barry was his master, tearing in with his terrific body punches and stamping left hooks to the head that Calloway could not stop, and then getting behind every Barry drove them home and the sawed off colored fighter could not get out of their pathway, but he was game and willing, as he showed by his white face at any stage of the bout.

Barry was relentless in dealing out heavy punishment and threw caution to the winds trying to reach Calloway with a damaging punch. He tossed the clumsy negro around like a feather in the clinches, driving and using his free hand till he was completely tied up.

Barry After a K. O.

Barry was after a knockout from the start, when he saw that Calloway could not reach him with any effect and then he cut loose, rushing the colored man all over the ring, making things look threatening for the coast ringster.

The muscular Calloway had a sting to his welt when he landed a left hook or reach caused Barry to take plenty of chances and he was doing all the leading from the breakaway.

At no time did Barry show any signs of being in distress, while Calloway was tottering on his legs as early as the fifth round, and would have been easy prey then but Barry tired himself out with his fierce attack, and the black fighter freshened up a bit in the rest for the next round.

Barry, with his confidence nit, got away to good shape, but before the end of the first round he saw that he was not going to win without a struggle as Calloway swapped with him in the fist mixup which came before they had been in the ring a couple of minutes and appeared to show the favorite style of the Chicago slasher.

Always Held the Lead.

After the Barry battle settled down to go along more methodically, occasionally breaking out in wild rushes with a hay-maker on top and Calloway by some art ful dodging managed to avoid getting floored until the closing minute anxiously to become aggressive, with Barry likely to connect at any time with one of his swinging haymakers.

Calloway's visage displayed the marks of Barry's heavy duties. With blood flowing from his mouth and nose, both swollen from the fierce shots of the Windy City gladiator red and gave the impression that if he and Barry who was cut up, but he never received a mark from the coloredman.

Barry sustained his reputation as a good fighting machine perfected, he worried Calloway in the clinches, refusing to break away and doing his utmost to reach over a destructive punch before the referee had his guard up, and the referee had some narrow escapes from the left swings as he was trying to separate the pair.

Maguire Won in Two.

Young Maguire won the first preliminary in quick fashion from Angus McDougal of South Boston as two rounds were sufficient for him to send the local boy to dreamland.

It was a close argument between Henry Mercy of Charlestown and Young Limerick of New Hampshire, both sticking to the fighting pace that was maintained. Referee Miers justly got the decision by a shade.

BOUT BY ROUNDS.

ROUND ONE—Barry started operations by stepping in with a left hook to the head. Then he landed the same hand on the head. In the clinch he tried to shake over a left and was rough housed for the attempt. Calloway woke up and led with left and a right follow, but Barry was under cover. Barry rushed and drove his left to Calloway's head. He rushed again and hooked left to the wind. There was a furious mixup, the two letting go with both hands. Calloway shook Barry up with a left smash on the head, but received a terrific clout on the nose. Barry's round.

ROUND TWO.—Barry forced Calloway to the ropes and planted a right hook on the head. As Barry rushed Calloway tackled low and Jim nearly did a somersault over the colored man's shoulder. Barry shoved out a straight left but was evenly met. Barry rushed his head on shoulders. Calloway went in wild and Barry met the colored man's attack with swings. Barry rushed with right and left, left and Calloway tried to work with him but was worsted. They had another exchange and a right to the jaw caused Calloway to hug. Barry went in with a terrific right to the heart. He rushed again and hooked his head and brought it down as if to chop Calloway in two but the latter doubled up in a hunch and the crowd gave Barry the round.

ROUND THREE.—Calloway scored first with a left to the head. Barry shot four or five over with a left and they clinched. Calloway tried to bore in Barry's abdomen with a straight left. Barry came back with a right to the heart and in close fighting Calloway covered up nicely. Calloway set sail with both hands swinging. Both swings lefts and missed at the bell. Barry's round.

ROUND FOUR.—Calloway came out of his corner and danced around and then swished left to head. Barry took his time and counted with a left hook to the head. Calloway swung right, but it barely circled Barry's neck. The coast fighter stalled, calling for clinches and not making a load and the crowd got after him to do something. He got right and left on Barry's head but received a left belt on his own knob. Barry's round.

ROUND FIVE.—Barry shot left to the head; then the pair mixed like fiends with both hands but no damage was done. Barry got mad and rushed, jamming his right on the jaw. In quick went the big heavyweight and Calloway hung on as if for life after he tried to throw him off and keep hammering with his right hand. Barry, tired from his strenuous efforts and unable to get away from Calloway was out for blood and rushed in with a left to the head. Calloway's body. Calloway was weak at the end and did a bit of clinching. Barry's round.

ROUND SIX.—Barry jabbed hard with his left. He nearly sprawled on the floor going over Calloway's head in a desperate effort to land a lefter. Calloway landed a straight left but missed with a right swing and Barry shot his right hand over with a left hook. Barry let slip a right and he went over Calloway's head. Barry forced to the ball trying to drop his black adversary. Barry's round.

ROUND SEVEN.—Calloway pranced around keeping out of Barry's way. Barry located his moving opponent and slammed left to head. He swung right for the jaw but Calloway ducked in time. Barry did connect with a right to the heart and Calloway took a mark again. Calloway was backed against the ropes when Barry proceeded to rip in short lefters to the body. Barry's round.

ROUND NINE.—Barry drove a right to the heart and left to the head. He went over Barry's shoulder. Calloway was groggy, but Barry made bonehead play in rushing at leading. Barry got going and swung and missed and received a right in the clinch. He jammed his right on the jaw and Calloway was hanging on. Barry tried to shove him off and took to the jaw with left. Calloway countered with a right exceeding he received from Barry. At the bell Barry had him on the ropes and piling in right and lefts to the head. Calloway dropped to the mat and was dragged to his corner by Barry's round.

ROUND TEN.—Barry did not sit down and as soon as the gong rang walked over to Calloway and whaled him on the jaw with right and left. The operated from anchor man all over the floor and Calloway sank to the canvas completely knocked out. Barry's round.

ROXBURY DAY ON THE GRIDIRON

Thanksgiving Day will be the real "Roxbury Day" on the gridiron this year when the two great A. A. U. Alphonsus A. A. and the Shawmut Club, battle on the American League grounds. St. Alphonsus A. A. are at present leading in the Massachusetts State League and in the greatest election that ever represented that association. Among the well known stars wearing the Saint's colors are Kiley, Burkhardt and Ryan, while George Kennedy, Tom Keefe, Bill Shields and Pat Connolly are some of the stars that will line up for the Shawmuts. The Roslon Charels Field Band will furnish music during the contest.

BOWLING LEAGUE

Through the efforts of Arthur Hatch of Everett Lodge the Elks Inter-Lodge League will begin its season schedule the first of December. Six lodges are included, comprising Everett, Malden, Melrose, Lynn, Chelsea and Winthrop. Besides bowling there will be handicap, pool and whist, contests in all to count in winning the championship of the league.

Last season there were ten lodges in the bowling league the ones dropping out being Boston, Medford, Waltham, Cambridge and Somerville. Melrose being a newcomer to the list. The Malden Lodge has tendered the use of its clubhouse to Melrose Lodge in playing of its schedule.

MELLODY TO BOX ROLFE

Honey Mellody and Billy Rolfe have been matched for the feature bout at the holiday show to be held by the National A. C. on Thanksgiving night. The full program has already been arranged and three excellent bouts comprise the card. It is the only local sporting event scheduled for tomorrow night and the fighting qualities of the ringsters are well known.

Mellody and Rolfe are sluggers pure and simple and each delights when the going is hard and rough. Their bout is booked for a dozen rounds, but as both hit with the force of battering rams it is very likely that either one or the other will be adjudged the winner long before the limit is reached. There will be two preliminaries of eight rounds each. In the first Jimmy Desjier, a brother of Dave, the well known ring knight will mix with Young Dyson of Providence. Dave realizes that Jimmy has a chance to cop the decision and will do his best to go against hard luck and to pull out right after it. Just how good he really is. The other preliminary will be between Eddie Flynn of Revere and Jack Motz.

In order to accommodate the members there will be somebody at the club quarters all day today and to-morrow also and the club telephone, South Boston 2100, has been used to advertising. The show will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS IN A GREAT GAME

The seventh annual game between Dorchester High and Brookline Latin High will be played on the Dunbar avenue grounds, Dorchester, Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock. Great interest is being taken by the supporters of the two teams and before the game they will parade with their songs and cheers. The teams are closely matched, and a clean, hard game is expected. $3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Men---Free

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, failing memory and lame back, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his power and vitality, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge to a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of lost strength ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly and sleep one night like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 2185 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $5.00 to $10.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

JIMMY WALSH TO MEET ALLEN

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Final arrangements were completed here for a match between Bantamweight Champion Jimmy Walsh of Boston and Billy Allen, the Canadian featherweight champion. The bout will be of ten rounds and will take place in the Alhambra, December 13. Walsh is conceding several pounds to the Canadian.

The match is the classiest looking little offering that has been carded in Syracuse in some years and will undoubtedly draw a record gathering.

KETCHEL, SORE AT COAST FANS, QUITS FRISCO

By TAD.

Stanley Ketchel is through with Frisco forever. That is what Steve is quoted as saying the day before he left the Western burg for Los Angeles. "I would rather fight for $1,000 in the East than for $5,000 out here. The sports out here think too much. They have ruined my reputation completely, and think because I won a few fights out here that they own me. Let them and other fighters for this joint in the future.

"I'm off for Los Angeles for a go with Jim Flynn. After I win from him I am going to New Orleans to pick up a little change, and from there I'll go East and take on either Sam Langford or the winner of the Kaufman-Ketchel fight."

Pretty strong talk from quiet, bashful Steve, isn't it? Ever since Willus Britt died it seems that tongues have been wagging out there about Ketchel's behavior. He admits that he felt badly over the loss of his little manager, but says that he did nothing foolish in the line of cafe parades, as they say out west.

Being a thin-skinned gent, Steve couldn't stand what told the scribes here in this paper men in a prominent cafe just before he slammed the door and shook the dust off his heels forever. Sporting writers out there say that Steve is an ingrate. They say that Frisco made him welter, middle and light heavyweight champion of the world. They say that Frisco should be the last place he should knock, and if it hadn't been for their generosity he wouldn't have a cushion to sit on, let alone an auto. Steve has his own ideas, however. He has gone with his boss wagon for the death.

Bad enough when we have to read about our greatest fighters being hits on the stage, but if they're ready to fight now, but I'll take a few months on the stage first." That's what they say, eh? Now we have to go and see Jeff's show before we know who gets the bid. At least the press agent tells us so. In the varieties it called for bids to be opened at the Hotel Albany. Oh, well!

B. Nelson and his show have been knocking them off the chairs, so he states in a letter. He left for Montreal last night, where he will stick for another week. The June did not mention fighting. Guess like the rest of them he has forgotten all about it.

Digger Stanley and Joe Bawker will soon meet in London to decide the bantamweight championship of England. As the new English weight is fixed at 118 pounds for bantams, Bowker thinks he'll make rest of the jockey is usual, and will bet $500 on the side. Should either be the victor he will come to America after the holidays and meet the best we have here.

CUTLER LOSES TO FRENCHMAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Rostonian succumbed to Putnian in the third game of the 18.2 balk line three-cushion billiard tournament in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall.

Floulo Cassignol, the French expert, won from Albert Cutler in a game which promised big averages at first, but dwindled. The score was 500 to 412 and the battle four hours.

The ball-to-ball work was of the highest class, particularly by Cutler, when he ran 153 in his ninth inning, and finished with that run. He never regained his form after the big session, and the Frenchman caught him in the fourteenth inning with an alluring array of ninety-seven. It took the Frenchman two innings to accomplish his last fifty points.

Cutler and Demarest play this afternoon and Chile and Slosson in the evening.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

ONE WEEK FROM TO-DAY THE BIDS for the Jeff-Johnson fight will be opened, and on the following day the big fellow, "Fairfield Fido" Berger and the all-star vaudeville aggregation will hit Boston for a one-night stand at the Amory. When he arrives here Jeff will be able to tell us all about the big fight, the where, the when and the how, but he won't. Sam Berger, who is the best single-handed tell er in sporting, and also the telling est usual Jeff will be able to answer any question, that permits of "Yes" or "No" being the answer, but so far as I have been able to discover by many attempted conversations with the former champion, any longer sentence is up to Berger. Talking is Sam's long suit and he can do it. When he reaches Boston, Sam will tell us all about it, even how it is going to end.

AND WHEN THEY OPEN THOSE bids and award the fight, take it from me it will go to Jim Coffroth. He is the logical impresario and has the reputation of finishing anything he starts. He is no fair weather as a fight promoter, has started after the big fight, and it is better than an even money proposition that he lands it.

DON'T YOU THINK IT IS ABOUT time to cut out a lot of this fish dub about the Boston National baseball team? Every once in a while some reporter runs short of something to write, and springs a cock and bull story that John Dovey will not sell the Doves. Well, no one said he would. He's not trying to sell the Doves and no one else is trying to buy the Doves. And while you're at it, forget this Kling business. Kling isn't going to manage the Doves, and I don't believe he will manage any team this year. I'm ready to fight for John Dovey himself, and he never told me wrong, that Kling has never been considered. Considering all the circumstances Harry Smith made good with the Doves and he looks to me like the real man to manage them again.

IT LOOKS AS IF THEY NEVER would get through doping out that Harvard-Yale game. Every mail brings me a lot of letters in reference to it, and as the football season is about over, most of them go to the waste basket. Here is one, however, that is too good for such a fate:

Will you kindly publish the following in your valuable column? The Somerset A. Straight Dope, Boston American:
To settle an argument will you please answer the question for me. Was John L. Sullivan champion of the world, or only of America? Didn't he fight a draw with Charley Mitchell in France in the early part of 1888? Thirty-nine rounds were fought.
Quincy, Mass., Nov. 20, 1909. FRANK ELLIOT.

This is an awful old one and has been answered a dozen times in this column, but here it is again. John L. was never champion of the world. He did fight a 39-round draw with Charlie Mitchell at Chantilly, France.

YOUNG JACK JOHNSON TAKES HIS ben in hand to register a complaint against the matchmakers for the poor showing they are giving him more consideration. He says he wants nothing better than a crack at some of these young fellers who are making so waterweight stars, but refers to Kyle Whitney in a way that leads me to believe he wants no more of that game. There are a lot of fans that Johnson can beat if he keeps his head down to the right dimensions, but there are quite a few he would do well to let alone for some time to come. He's after another match with Billy Rolfe and I hope he gets it.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

BOSTON AMERICANS DOUBLE

THE THANKSGIVING SPIRIT

By KENNETT HARRIS

Mr. Gullip (cheerfully)—Well, this is a regular good old-fashioned Thanksgiving, isn't it?

SCENE—The Tinkerton dining room, the table being set for nine persons and fortified with the National Bird and the Appurtenances in fine proper array. Seated, Mr. Hennerberry Tinkerton, Mrs. Hennerberry Tinkerton, Miss Pantina Tinkerton, Hennerberry Tinkerton, Jr., Willie Tinkerton, Mr. Gullip (the old friend of the family), Cousin Herbert, Mrs. Herbert and the Baby. Time, November 25th.

MR. TINKERTON (gruffly)—Amen. Seems to me this is a pretty small specimen of a fourteen-pound bird, Maggie. It must have shrunk considerably.

MRS. TINKERTON (anxiously)—I'm afraid it isn't done enough; but I simply cannot get that girl to understand how to manage the oven. I think she's about the worst—

MRS. HERBERT (sympathetically)—They are so stupid. I don't know what we are coming to, I'm sure. My Hilda—

COUSIN HERBERT (jocularly)—I guess the slight of this crowd made that turkey shrink. I don't blame it. But isn't it fierce the price they are asking for turkeys nowadays? When I first went to housekeeping—

MR. TINKERTON (sarcastically)—If there's anything I love, it's to carve a tough bird with a knife that hasn't been sharpened in a year.

MR. GULLIP (facetiously)—Try the back of the knife, then. Maybe it's sharper that-a-way.

HENNERBERRY, JUNIOR (sotto voce, savagely)—I see myself getting out to the game this afternoon at the rate we're getting served. Darn the luck

WILLIE TINKERTON (equally aggressively)—Well, say, you ain't the only one, and you won't be served the last of all, either.

MR. GULLIP (to Cousin Herbert)—In twenty-five years I haven't known business as bad as it has been this last year. Even the potatoes—

MR. TINKERTON—This gravy's too lumpy to post bills with, and I'm sure it isn't fit to eat. Pauline, you serve the potatoes. Business? Rotten! By George! there isn't any business worth speaking of. We've made just about twenty per cent on capital invested, allowing for depreciation of the plant, and it looks as if we wouldn't do that well next year. Pass the celery to your uncle, Willie. Everybody seems to be complaining.

MRS. TINKERTON (indignantly)—I should think not indeed! If I let you have what you wanted and do what you please, I'd be a nice mother. But I don't expect any thanks for doing my duty by any of my children. What are you looking at your plate like that for, Willie?

WILLIE (choking with his sense of injury)—I wanted a drumstick and father's given me a wing.

MR. GULLIP—So I went down there expecting to have a good time. Took my gun and fishing tackle along, of course; but I might just as well have left 'em at home. I was there three weeks and I didn't get a thing. I fished the stream, from one end of it to the other, and I want to tell you if there are any fish to get, I get 'em. Not a bite though, and as for shiting, the only thing there was to shoot was the tin cans that the old swindletgot his fresh vegetables in. I was for months under the doctor's care after I got back. That's what my vacation i for me.

COUSIN HERBERT—We all got malarlon ours. But then, if it hadn't been ousna, it would have been something else. Mrinally's bound to have something the nter with it.

MR. TINKERTON—There's always some o thing.

MRS. TINKERTON—I haven't known what it is to feel well since I can remember, and I don't expect to. Hennerberry says there's no reason why I shouldn't have good health, and I tell him that I know there isn't—except that anything that was at all good would be too good for me. My dear, pass your plate for some more dressing, won't you?

MR. GULLIP—Yes, I told him they're grafters and faleves, but I don't know any grass in this country where they don't. Look at the Sugar Trust, and look at everything. And every year it's getting worse. Honest, I'd think for my native land if I wouldn't keep me red in the face all of the time. We've got a sweet government, haven't we?

COUSIN HERBERT—We certainly have. I wish you could see my sidewalk assessment.

HENNERBERRY, JUNIOR (to his sister)—All of the other fellows have a good allowance, but I've got to drop out when there's anything doing. You've got more money than I have. If you want me to take her, fil do it, but you'll have to put up for the tickets.

MRS. TINKERTON—Father, can't I go to the game? It'll only cost a dollar and I never have any fun.

THE BABY—Wah! Wa-a-ah! Wa-ah-ah-ah-ah!

MRS. HERBERT—Oh, the darling! didums sen, b'ess it? Excuse me, please. No, Pauline, dear, it's nothing you can do. Some wiv its muzzer sen. (Exit with baby.)

MR. GULLIP (cheerfully, looking around the board and addressing his host)—Well, Hen, this is a regular good old-fashioned Thanksgiving, isn't it?

The Binding Chain

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

MEN have outgrown the worthless creed,
Which bade them deem it
God's good will.
That labor sweat and starve to fill
And glut the purse of idle greed.

They have outgrown the poor content
That breeds oppression. Forged by pain.
Mind links with mind in one great Chain
Of protest and of argument.

And by the hand of progress hurled,
This mighty chain of human thought,
In silence and in anguish wrought,
Encompasses the pulsing world.

And he who will not form a link
Of new conditions soon to be,
Ere long must stand aghast to see Old systems toppling down the brink.

They cannot and they shall not last.
The broader impulse of the hour
Will gain and grow and sweep away
The rank injustice of the past.

The purport of the hours is vast.
The world needs justice. It demands
United hearts, united hands.
The day of charity is past.

Let no man think he can despoil
And rob his kind by trick and fraud,
And at the last make peace with God
By tossing alms to honest toil.

More labor for the selfish few;
More leisure for the burdened mass;
These things shall surely come to pass.
As old conditions change to new.

They change thro' strain and strike and strife,
The worst but speeds the final best,
Work for all men—for all men rest,
And time to taste the joys of life.

The Bill Clerk Gets Stung

The Cashier Wasn't Interested in the Big Divorce Case

By KENNETT HARRIS

"WHAT do you think of that Boosington-Hittemup scandal?" asked the bill clerk.

"What kind of a scandal is that?" inquired the cashier, languidly.

"You'd better read the papers," advised the bill clerk, with contempt in his tone. "If you don't feel like giving up a penny, you might look over somebody's shoulder and find out a little of what's going on in the world. What kind of a scandal!"

"That's what I asked you," said the cashier. "Of course you are not bound to answer unless you wish to."

"Why, it's the hottest kind of a scandal," said the bill clerk. "Mrs. Boosington!—

"A friend of yours?" asked the cashier.

The bill clerk glared at him. "I said Mrs. Boosington," he snapped. "Mrs. Algernon Percival Boosington. Here's the-g-g-t-o-n. I suppose you haven't heard of them. What?"

"There's a familiar sound about the name, but—what has Algernon Percival done?"

"If you want to take his wife's account of the case—" began the bill clerk.

His Hold on Fame

"I don't mean that," interrupted the cashier. "I mean, what has he accomplished—what has he done to distinguish himself?"

"A fellow who's worth ten or twelve million dollars doesn't have to do anything to distinguish himself," said the bill clerk. "All he's got to do is to be a good spender, and Algy's all of that, and then some. His wife claims he was lit up about all the time."

"Do you mean that he was in the time light of publicity?" asked the cashier.

"Not exactly," replied the bill clerk. "I mean to imply that he was sanied—sanitated, is it spelled? Anyway that—"

"Never mind," said the cashier.

"Mrs. Boosington's on her way to Nevada now," continued the bill clerk.

"Mind, anyway, I suppose," remarked the cashier.

"What's it," said the bill clerk. "Antimony, or something that sounds like it."

"How you friend, Mrs. Boosington, seem to be much concerned?" asked the cashier in a perfunctory sort of manner.

The Cashier Is Grieved

"You must think I'm moving in the first circles," said the bill clerk. "Your friend Mr. Boosington," is good. I feel flattered, but you've got another guess coming."

"Do you mean to say that you are not an old and valued friend of the family?" asked the cashier, feigning astonishment. "Don't tell me that you are a perfect stranger to them and that your familiarity with the details of the domestic sidetrack has been acquired through the public prints."

"I don't know where else I'd get 'em, said the bill clerk.

"Perhaps you are a friend of the Boosington butler," hazarded the cashier. "Don't be offended," he added, "I am merely trying to account for your interest in the matter. It hardly seems possible that you would poke your nose into the private affairs of people with whom you have no sort of connection.

"It doesn't, eh?" sneered the bill clerk. "It seems to me an impertinence," said the cashier. "Either an impertinence or a most regrettable exhibition of morbid curiosity."

"Here is a man who, according to your account, is chiefly remarkable for his lack capacity—an imbecile and a prodigate.

"Is such a character uncommon among the idle rich? Is it so rare that it need excite comment? And is it wonderful that his wife should become disgusted with him and seek her freedom? You know it isn't. You know that there are hundreds of such cases every day among the poorer classes of society, but because the brute in the case is worth ten or twelve million dollars your eyes open wide with excitement as you ask me what I think of the disgraceful affair? I wonder if you were capable of such snobbishness, John-ny. I am grieved, deeply grieved."

"You're always getting grieved or pained about some thing," said the bill clerk. "I suppose that's one reason you don't read the papers."

Then He Scores One

"I make a point of reading the papers, but I don't read everything in 'em," said the cashier. "I content myself with the local news, the sporting page, the financial columns, the editorial comment and the advertisements.

"I seldom read the weather reports, the circulation affidavits or the date line. But I didn't see anything about the Boosington-Toss this morning. I must have skipped it unconsciously. Have you got a paper about your clothes, by the way?"

"It's in my overcoat pocket," said the bill clerk, smiling cynically.

The cashier found the paper and opened it up with some eagerness.

"Oh, there it is," he said, after turning over the sheets. "Hm-m. Yes—Well, well!"

"What do you think of it?" asked the bill clerk. "Pierce—what?"

"Well enough," said the cashier. "But perhaps he'll be able to explain to the satisfaction of his friends, even if the general public takes Pinchot's side of the controversy."

"What the dickens are you talking about?" asked the bill clerk, wonderingly.

"The glib charge," replied the cashier, innocently. "I see Bollinger is going to reply. I was interrupted when I began to read the article this morning."

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

A FEW years ago there was a shiftless colored boy named Ranson Blake, who, after being caught in a number of petty delinquencies, was at last sentenced to a short term in the penitentiary, where he was sent to learn a trade. On the day of his return home he met a friendly white acquaintance, who asked:

"Well, what did they put you at in prison, Ranse?"

They started in to make an honest boy outen me, sah."

"That's good, Ranse, and I hope they succeeded."

"Yes, did, yah."

"And how did they teach you to be honest?"

"They done put me in the shoe shop, sah, an' I reboard outer shoes fo' leather soles, sah."

What Do You Think of These Men?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I CONSIDER the following group of letters rather an interesting one. I give them in just the order in which I opened them in my mail. They were the first of a budget of sixty letters.

In not one of them does man appear in a very creditable light.

His attentions have kept other men away.

In his intense selfishness he has thought nothing of his own pleasure and not at all of her welfare.

In the other cases men have paid attention to girls and have, for no apparent reason, dropped them, leaving their letters unanswered or treating them so coolly that womanly pride forced the girl to retire.

What Men Think

When a man is attracted by a girl, all he thinks of is "How much pleasure and amusement can I get from this acquaintance.

He gives not a thought to the girl's side of the question.

Both the girl and her friends have every reason to believe his attentions serious, when suddenly he stops calling on her.

The girl frets and worries and, true to her woman nature, conforms herself with the thought that she has offended him in some way, or that he still loves her, but is too bashful to say so.

In the course of ten, his roving fancy has been attracted by the new face—he is off to conquests new.

I do not urge my girls to be unforgiving when I tell them to have nothing more to do with these men. I do say, don't believe a man's intentions to be serious until he unmistakably shows that he really cares for them.

Here are the letters, and if any man can defend his own sex after reading them let him speak up:

BEST FORGET HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For two years I kept steady company with a young gentleman, one year my junior. I being twenty-one. He promised to give up smoking while going with me, and kept the promise until a short time ago, and became angry and we had a quarrel. We parted friends, but I told him he had forfeited my company, by breaking the promise.

Although he professed to care a great deal for me, about one week later he took a young lady to an affair, which lady he had spoken of quite often.

About two weeks later I met him and during our conversation asked him a question, but he hesitated in answering, as he didn't see how he could or should leave his new friend to come back to me. This I considered anything but a manly way of expressing himself, and since have had nothing to do with him.

Should I have lowered my pride, or am I right in trying to forget him, though I be rather a hard thing to try to do?

ETHEL.

He kept his promise pretty well, and I think you were rather severe with him. I am afraid it is too late to win him back, as he has become interested in some one else. If he cares for the other girl he naturally hesitated when you asked him to go back to you. You should have thought of all that before you sent him away. Better try and forget him.

DO NOT ASK HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl, nineteen years old and am very fond of a young man two years my senior.

Last June I did not care for him, but he seemed very anxious to go with me, and now I have grown to be very, very fond of him, and he does not seem to be so anxious.

He has been to see me very often, and we have been out together.

Lately we had a little quarrel, which amounted to nothing. He is promising to call next evening, but he did not, and I have not seen him to this time.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

He lives near me and I see him all of the time. I am sure he does not go with any other girls. I wrote him a letter asking him to call. He did not, nor did he answer my letter.

I am going to a dance soon and would like to ask him. Would it be right? He seems anxious to make up, but still he doesn't.

Please give me your kind advice, as I am very, very fond of him. C. R.

I DO not think I would invite him to the dance if I were you. You have written him and he has not answered. I do not see how you could take any further step without appearing to run after him. If he cares for you he will soon come back.

DON'T WAIT TOO LONG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young woman, twenty-six years old, and have been keeping company with a young man, one year my junior, for two years.

I see him nearly every night, and he seems very fond of me, but has never given any mention to marry me. I love him very much.

Please advise me through your column if I am wasting any time, as I have several other gentlemen who seem fond of me, but I do not care as much for them.

M. W.

AFTER two years of courtship it is time he made up his mind one way or the other. Wait a few months longer and if by the end of that time he still holds back, tell him you think it wise to part.

LET HIM GO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year ago I met a young man whom I think a great deal of. Until a short time ago, I think, our feelings were mutual.

But he seems to have grown cold toward me, as I sent him two letters and he answered neither of them.

I met him at a party a week ago and he treated me very frivolly.

Will you kindly tell me what you think his feelings are toward me, and how I could gain his love.

HAZEL D.

DO not waste your time on a man who does not appreciate your love. If he only cared he would answer your letters. Any novice may be hard to follow, dear, but it is better to grave a little now than a great deal later.

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued)

A Long Little Finger.

"LITTLE scratches are all I want," said Coquenil, snapping his fingers excitedly.

"It's simply a question which side of his throat bears the thumb-mark. We know the murderer is a left-handed man, and, being suddenly attacked, he certainly used the full strength of his left hand in the first desperate clutch. He was feeling the man as he took him by the throat, so. If he used his left hand, the thumb-mark must be on the left side of the photographer's throat, whereas, if a right-handed man had done it, the thumb-mark would be on the right side. Stand up here and take me by the throat. That's it! Now with the left hand! Don't you see?"

"Yes," said Tignol, making the experiment, "I see?"

"Now, bring the man in here, wake him, tell him—tell him anything you like. I must know this."

"I'll get him in," said the commissary. "Come," and he followed Tignol into the hall.

A few moments later they returned with a thin, sleepy little person wrapped in a red dressing gown. It was the shrimp.

The photographer, under the spell of Peugeot's authority, stood meekly for inspection while Coquenil, holding a candle close, studied the marks on his face. They plainly marked on the left side of the throat was a single imprint, the curving red mark where a thumb had closed hard against the jugular vein (this man knew the deadly pressure points, while on the right side of the photographer's face were prints of the fingers.

"He used his left hand all right," said Coquenil, "and, saprisit, he had sharp nails!"

"Parbleu!" mumbled the shrimp.

"Here are the cheek bone is the mark of his first finger. And here, in front of the ear, is his second finger, and here is his third finger, just behind the ear, and here, way down on the neck, is his little finger.

The Long Little Finger

"Lord of Heaven, what a reach! Let's see if I can put my fingers on these marks. There's the thumb; there's the first finger—stand still, I won't hurt you! There's the second finger, and the third, and look at that, see that mark of the little finger nail. I've got long fingers myself, but I just can't come within an inch of it. You try."

Patiently the photographer stood still while the commissary and Tignol tried in vain to stretch their fingers over the red marks that scarred his countenance. And neither of them succeeded. They could not reach the marks except that of the little finger, that was quite beyond their reach.

"He has a very long little finger," remarked the commissary, and, in his instant, Coquenil remembered Alice's words that day as she looked at his plaster cast.

A very long little finger! Here it was! One that could equal the length of that famous seventh century criminal's little finger. But this man was living! He had brought back Khtreige's bones! He was left-handed! He had a very long little finger! And Alice knew such a man!

CHAPTER XIX.

Touching a Yellow Tooth

IT was a quarter past four, and still night, when Coquenil left the Hotel des Etrangers. He wore a soft black hat pulled down over his eyes and a shabby black coat turned up around his ears, while he carried his leather bag taken from the automobile. The streets were silent and deserted, yet the detective studied every doorway and corner with vigilant care, while a hundred yards behind him, in exactly similar dress, came Papa Tignol peering into the shadows with sharpest watchfulness against human shadows bent on burning M. Paul.

So they passed cautiously down the Boulevard St. Michel, then over the bridge and along the river to Notre Dame, whose massive towers stood out in mysterious beauty against the faintly lighted eastern sky. Here the leader paused for his companion.

"There's nothing?" he said as the latter joined him.

"Nothing."

"Good! Take the bag and wait for me, but keep out of sight."

"Entendu."

Alice Knew the Man

Coquenil was pleased and confident as he rang the night bell at the archbishop's house beside the cathedral, for he had one previous clew. He had the indication of this extraordinary long little finger, and he did not believe that in all France there were two men with hands like that. And in Europe there was one such man, for Alice had seen him.

As he stood uncertain which way to turn the detective heard a step and a low growl, and peering among the arches of the choir, he saw a lantern advancing. Behind a figure holding the lantern, then another crouching figure on leaving before the lantern, and then he recognized Cæsar.

"Pr-r-st, phss-st!" he whistled softly and, with a start and a glad rush, the dog came bounding to his master, while the sacristan stared in alarm.

"Good old Cæsar! There, there!" murmured Coquenil, fondling the eager head. "It's all right Bonneton," and, coming forward, he held out his hand as the guardian lifted his lantern in suspicious scrutiny.

"M. Paul, upon my soul!" exclaimed the sacristan. "What are you doing here at this hour?"

"It's a little—er—personal matter," confided Coquenil, dancing—"party about Cæsar. Can we sit down somewhere?"

Still wondering, Bonneton led the way to a small room adjoining the treasure chamber, where a dim lamp was burning. Here he and his associate got alternate chairs and pieces of sleepy duty.

"Hey, Francois!" He shook a sleeping figure on a cot bed and the latter raised himself and sat up. "It's time to make the rounds."

In the Dim Cathedral.

Francois looked stupidly at Coquenil, and then, with a yawn and a shrug of indifference, he rolled to the dog, while Cæsar growled his greetings.

"It's all right, old fellow," encouraged Coquenil, "I'll see you again," whereupon Cæsar trotted away reassured.

"Take this chair," said the sacristan "I'll sit on the bed. We don't have many visitors."

"Now, then," began M. Paul. "I'll come to the point at once. You could swear I'm not going to take him away. But I want to ask you about a friend that you who sees candles. She boards with you, doesn't she?"

"Yes."

"You know she's in love with this American who's in prison?"

"Yes."

"To begin with, who is the man with the little finger? You know who I mean, about?" He put the question carelessly, but he was in fact very much interested.

"Why, that's Grocner," answered Bonneton, simply.

"Grocner? Oh, her cousin?"

"Yes."

"I'm interested," went on the detective, with the utmost indifference, "because I have a collection of plaster hands at my office. I'm going to open one day, and there's one with a long little finger that the candle girl noticed. Is her cousin's little finger really very long?"

"Very long," said Bonneton, "accused to think it had been stretched in some machine. You know how a wood carver."

"I know. Well, that's nothing to me there. The point is, this girl had a dream about him, and I want to ask you—"

"Don't talk to me about her dreams!" exclaimed the sacristan. She used to have us scared to death with 'em. My wife won't let her tell us any more, and it's a good thing she won't." For a mild man Bonneton showed surprising vehemence.

SYNOPSIS.

All the wealth and fashion of Williamsburg are gathered one Tuesday evening in June at the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr for the wedding of Lecomte Gibbs and Dorothy Day. The bridegroom is a high official in the trust that controls the iron and steel industry of America, while the bride is the brightest gem in Williamsburg's social diadem.

The wedding party is one of the most fashionable ever seen in the city. The bridesmaids are assembled in the vestry of the church and are chattering around the bride. The groom is waiting in the church and the first notes of the wedding march are pealing from the organ. All is in readiness for the bridal party to proceed before the fashionable rector for the ceremony.

The bridesmaids are just forming into line in the vestry and are around the bride when they are struck aback by a roughly dressed stranger, who steps up to the bride and, after whispering a few words to her thrusts some article into her hand and disappears.

Dorothy Day turns pale and stands horror-stricken for a moment, then, clutching the article thrust into her hand in her bosom, she turns and leaves the vestry. A glimpse of her bridal finery as she passes from the church is the last seen of her.

The bridal party waits for the return of the bride and after a long wait the news of the disappearance is broken to the persons assembled for the wedding.

Private search is made for the missing girl but daily avails nothing. Late that night the police are called in and Lecomte Gibbs seeks to have all the servants questioned, in the hope that one of them may have a clew to the woman who promised to marry him and who so strangely disappeared as she was about to say the words that would bind her to him for life.

Flint, a plain clothes man from Headquarters, is detailed on the case. From the story told him by Edith Glevalex, the maid of honor, and Foster Cole, a friend of Gibbs, who was to have been best man, he tells the sergeant, when he returns to Headquarters, that Dorothy Day has skipped out with another man.

Cole goes with Gibbs to the home he had built and to which he intended taking his wife. As he is about to enter the house, Cole notices a queer inscription in yellow chalk of some letters and figures. He pays little attention to the matter, goes into the house with Gibbs and is asking him about Dorothy's early history, when he says:

The Brass Reliquary

"N. O." Gibbs promptly contradicted. "Dorothy's not that kind. She is too level headed to be thrown into a fright by a shadow."

"I'm sure," said he, tolerantly, "she is more sensible than the general run of girls, she'd have to be, or Edith would never have been so drawn to her. Still, Lecomte, such a . . ." if he was about to add "woman," he abruptly changed his mind. Scaring himself in his chair, he resumed immediately, his tone more serious and direct:

"I say, this is not getting anywhere. Let's see if we can't really light upon something in Dorothy's past that will give us the hint we want. Don't squirm that way; I know the idea is confoundedly unpleasant; but such things have to be dealt with squarely. There are no closet skeletons in her life, are there?"

A California Girl

"Good Lord, how could there be!" in an outburst of exasperation. "Do you want to drive me crazy?"

"There, there, old chap," retorted the other, sympathetically. "It could not be anything serious, I am positive. Some little matter of sentiment, as likely as not, but a whole mountain of importance to her. That gold bracelet affair—no telling what significance it may have."

"Well, I have no idea of any such thing."

"Let me see," pursued the younger man, taking a thoughtful look upon his somewhat Turkish lamp of hammered copper. The design was one of those grotesque conceptions, in scroll and arabesque, which only an Occidental mind can ever begin to concentrate the mind. "Let me see; she came to Williamsburg while a boy, away to Cuba, didn't she?—from out West some where? Just assume, Lecomte, that I have never heard of Miss Dorothy Day. Tell me all you know respecting her."

"You know how long——" began Gibbs; and Cole calmly interrupted.

"But I don't. Begin at the beginning and tell me."

"Well, Miss Day has been in Williamsburg only about four or five years, and on the twelfth of this month she will be twenty-four."

"Dorothy was never finicky about her age," murmured Cole.

"She came originally from—from—what's that California town," Gibbs proceeded, evenly, "where the latsen sails make it look like a Southern Mediterranean port?"

"Santa Barbara?"

"It wasn't, Santa Barbara, but something like it."

"Santa Cruz! That's the place. Her father was interested in mining, and most of his time was spent away from home. He must have been quite successful, for he left her a pretty comfortable fortune but, long ago, she doesn't inquire into such things."

"One ought to," was the young man's sententious comment.

"Any how, he's dead, also her mother—never had any brothers or sisters. At least, I never heard of any."

Cole elevated his brows when he comprehended that the speaker was in earnest.

"You are certainly brief," he remarked.

"Brief? How so? What did you expect—a history full of exciting adventure? There is no more mystery about Dorothy Day's life than you could find in the life of almost any Williamsburg lady I might name."

The cynic of the young man's mouth twitched, but Gibbs did not observe it.

Delving Into the Past

"But behind the four or five years she has been here——"

"I never inquired," curtly: "she was a mere girl—a child—then."

For a moment Cole speculated upon the possibilities involved in an elderly bachelor's perception of "a mere girl." Absently he sat tapping the upholstered leather arms of his chair, the while he contemplated the fantastic ornaments on the lamp shade. There were just fourteen of them, that he could see from where he sat, and them simulated rubies of large size with more or less effectiveness.

"Well, well, Lecomte was a chap that a fellow couldn't help liking, whatever else whatever else he was innocent. Could it be possible, after all, that the flight of the bride-elect, occurring as it did before instead of after the ceremony, might be regarded as a lucky stroke of fortune for his friend? The thought was decidedly unpalatable.

Cole lowered his voice.

"Study now, but we want to get to the bottom of this business. Let's get down Gibbs a level look. 'To your knowledge, was Miss Day ever before engaged in a serious love affair?'"

Lecomte Gibbs frowned and tugged nervously at his gray military mustache.

"What the deuce are you driving at?" he bluntly demanded.

"Short answer is if you don't want to, but you had better be prepared for a good deal of questioning along that line, on the part of well-intended but misguided——"

"Confound it!" Gibbs suddenly exploded. "You don't think my affianced wife has run off with somebody else, do you?"

"Now we are getting to the point," responded the unmoved Cole. "I don't exactly think so; but that detective, Flint—does not look as if everybody else his minutes ago, interesting."

The harassed gentleman groaned. He made a despairing, impatient gesture, and, almost angrily, began to pace to and fro the length of the luxurious apartment.

"You are right," he presently muttered, his face white and set. "What a mess! What a cafe Flint will have to report, in short. . . . Foster, I honestly believe there has never been another instance in which faith was firm-footed in the assurance that she loved me"—his voice broke on the sensation—"I believe it yet."

For another pause the young man was silent; his fingers caused their nonchalant tattoo on the fat, fantastic knobs, and Gibbs resumed his restless promenade. After a while Cole's attention wandered moving again, and he asked a question which caused the other to turn on a New York and stare at him.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, it seems odd, don't you know—anybody coming all the way from California and deliberately ruining the whole show, hole to live in, when there is such a New York—Lecomte, what magnet drew her to this city? what the deuce ails her?"

Gibbs slowly relaxed from his strained attitude, frowning.

"Blessed if I know!" exclaimed he. "The question never occurred to me."

"Humph! You see, already we have touched upon a circumstance which will bear a little inspection. Now then—that trip. Did not Dorothy take a trip to Cuba during the war?"

The other slowly nodded affirmative as he was busy thinking himself into a fit.

"Correct me if I don't get this straight. She came here originally with her aunt, the timid, tender-hearted little Miss Day, and that old grandpa of a house keeper, to whom she is so devoted—what's her name?"

"Miss Kemp; Sarah Kemp."

"After a few weeks of clairvoyant seclusion, during which Miss Dorothy Day and her household were the objects of much curious speculation on the part of neighbors, she and the grenadier quite suddenly depart from the city. Wild speculation: Why had she taken the grim housekeeper? Why left behind the pretty little Dresden-china aunt? And, anyhow, where and why had she gone? Am I correct?"

"Very good, so far."

"Well, it presently became noised about that the oddly sorted pair had gone to Cuba. Speculation now at fever heat.

"And no wonder," Cole continued, with an air of mild astonishment. "Nurses's fleet had just been wiped out, and Shafter was making it hot for the Dons ashore; not just the time for a pleasure journey to the Pearl of the Antilles, eh?" The speaker paused and his eyes narrowed.

"What was the occasion of that trip?" he asked.

Mr. Gibbs merely shook his head; old, well-nigh forgotten topics of gossip were being stirred in a way that made it plain now why the incidents specified by Cole had piqued curiosity. And he was plainly troubled. Yet no one ever really knew the object of that journey, nor why the housekeeper had been chosen as a companion instead of the aunt.

For a time the younger man remained deep in reflection; but to a minute or two he continued.

"If my memory amounts to anything, the pair returned in three or four weeks, or such a matter; and it was not long fluttered to the floor, which Gibbs picked thereafter until Miss Day began to figure in this precious society of ours—a-m-m."

"Oh, off," said he. "I suppose last night was pretty hard upon the aunt?"

"Miss Letitia? Naturally. No use bothering her; she is completely upset."

"Oh, I was just thinking of dropping in on her later——" In the face of a remarkable change in Gibbs's expression he abruptly paused.

"What is it?" asked he, advancing a step under the stimulus of the other's peculiar conduct.

The Brass Reliquary

Plainly oblivious of his friend's last words, the cognizant was staring in rounded eyed amazement at some article reposing among a litter of ornaments, paper weights and library bric-a-brac on the old wide-topped writing table. Gibbs singled out an object with a trembling finger.

"How came that here?" he cried hoarsely.

Following the unsteady guidance of the levelled forefinger, Cole advanced to the table and laid his hand upon a small, hammered brass box, a quaintly oriental reliquary.

"This?" inquired he.

"Yes. How came it here? It's a trinket I picked up in Rome and presented to Dorothy more than a year ago. What's the meaning of this mystery, Foster?"

The lid bore a tiny figure of some anonymous saint with hands closely pressed together over his stomach. Cole lifted it, and sounded inside.

At first was merely puzzled; he drew forth a narrow strip of metal—gold, apparently—thin, and misshapen from having been crowded within its narrow confines. As, wonderingly, he straightened it out, a sheet of paper

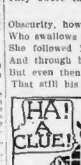
ICHABOD By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

(Ex-Vice-President Fairbanks has permitted his beard to be removed.—News Item.)

WHEN Fairbanks was a little boy his elders stroked his chin
And chortled "What a lovely place to grow good whiskers in!"
And when the adolescent youth grew old enough to vote,
He had a set to irritate an envious papa goat.

And when men heard the south wind through that hirsute cane-brake sough
They swore that bleak obscurity could not get Fairbanks now.

Obscurity, however, is a most persistent jade,
Who swallows many a mighty man in her abysmal shade.
She followed Fairbanks hungrily, no matter where he went,
And through her machinations he became Vice-President.
But even then the lady found, to her enraged surprise,
That still his sage brush loomed before a gladdened nation's eyes.



Through four long years, enshrouded in Vice-Presidential gloom,
Our hero toiled the jade's attempts to sign and seal his doom.
Forgot his words, forgot his deeds, his drinking bouts forgot.
Forgotten though his polar pose his brownish broom was not.
And still that crowning glory of the starker, sterner sex
Remained to rivet people's gaze, when he became an "ex."

But one sad day in far Japan, moved by no man knows what (A saki cocktail? Possibly! A wild drink! Trust it not!)
A bad two razor barber took him to a secret place,
Laid hands upon that dusteratte and wrenched it from his face!
In vain to-day, bereft and sad, the Wabash breezes sough,
The sycamores alone reply, for where is Fairbanks now?

Society Deserts City for Country Holiday Parties

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The Thanksgiving spirit is pleasingly pervasive in routing social to-day, and the preparations for family reunions or the scurrying and hustling off to country homes or to house parties for over the holiday is absorbing the interest of the fashionables.

On this account the attendance at Grand Opera to-night or in fact the attendance at any of the few smart functions scheduled for to-day will be small as all else gives way to the attraction of hospitable country homes with their glowing hearthstones and bountiful Thanksgiving dinners.

One of the most interesting of the Thanksgiving events will be the annual luncheon to be served at the kennels of the Norfolk Hunt club to-morrow, directly following the meet at Bullard's Corner, Hull-ston, earlier in the day. Henry G. Vaughan, master of the hunt, has the affair in charge, so its success is assured. A similar hospitality will take place at the Myopia Club.

One of the few at homes to-day is that which Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weston Benson and Miss Rhoda Benson are holding at their residence in Salem from 4:30 until 7 o'clock this afternoon.

+ + +

Mrs. Godfrey Robinson of Brookline is to have charge of the great bridge, one of the newest features at the South End Day Nursery Fair to be held at the Vendome, December 1 and 2. The luncheon and tea room will be in charge of Mrs. Stanley P. Clemens, and the girls who will serve as waitresses are Miss Beatrice Wright, Miss Ruth Hall, Miss Rachel Hall, Miss Marion Bewley, Miss Alice Ladd, Miss Amelia Ladd, Miss Dorothy Cooley, Miss Grace French, Miss Alice Newhall, Miss Sally Alley, Miss Dorothea McDonald, Miss Adele Hagan, Miss Florence Real, and Mrs. D. H. Eldridge.

Many Boston friends are interested in the wedding to-day in St. John's Church in Lafayette Square, New York, when Miss Davida Bayard Noble becomes the bride of Lieutenant Sherman Miles of the United States Army.

Miss Margaret Draper, daughter of the former Ambassador and Lady William P. Draper, and of Mrs. Draper of Hopedale, is one of the bridesmaids. Miss Draper, who has recently returned to Washington for the winter, will be one of the group of girls forming the debutantes this season.

Others of the bridal party are Miss Elizabeth Parker, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Richard Wayne Parker; Miss Mary Scott, Miss Jonnia Schroeder, Miss Dorothy Bacon, Miss Celeste Hoyt, Miss Hoyt, Percy Weeks, Chauncey Hackett, William Emery, Philip Matthews and Harold W. Hunting.

The wedding breakfast is being served at the house of the bride's mother, Mrs. Noble, after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison Cross have taken the Hyde house on Gibbon avenue, recently in Worcester, are to make their home in Brookline, and will be at home at No. 7 Washburn Terrace after the first of December.

Mr. and Mrs. Slang Spaulding have arranged to remain at their country house in Pride's Crossing until the last of November, and are to sail for a winter in Egypt about the first of the month.

Mr. Spaulding's sister, Mrs. Henry Parsons King, and family have been spending the autumn at their country home in Pride's Crossing, and have recently opened their town house on Commonwealth avenue, where they will remain until about the first of the year, when they have planned to sail for Italy.

Miss Ada Phipps and her niece, Miss Alice Convenent Kortright, are visiting friends here, having concluded their season at Newport.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hunnewell, who are still at their suburban home in Wellesley, expect to spend their town house in the latter part of the month, and will soon be in Boston for the Winter.

Professor and Mrs. Raphael Pumpelly have gone to their residence on Gibbon avenue, Newport, for the Winter. During the Christmas holidays they are expecting to entertain their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. Welles Pumpelly (Amelia Ripley).

Prior to opening her own town house here, Mrs. Philip S. Sears has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Sears at their residence on Beacon street.

John D. Long of Hingham is looking forward to the arrival of his daughter, Dr. Margaret Long, from Detroit, Saturday of this week, as she will be with him during the Thanksgiving season.

An engagement that has just been announced and is of general interest is that of Miss Louise W. Taft to George H. Snow of Seattle, Wash., formerly of Boston. Miss Taft is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warren Taft and a niece of President Taft. She was introduced to society three years ago and is very popular. Her father is a graduate of the Yale Scientific School of the class of 1907 and was in the same class with Miss Taft's brother, Walbridge Taft. Since Mr. Snowden's graduation he has traveled extensively in Europe, and is now engaged in the lumber business.

The wedding will take place in New York city during the Christmas holidays, and the young people will make their home in Seattle. This is the second engagement in the family of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Taft within two months, as the engagement of Walbridge Taft to Miss Ethel Herrick, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Herrick of Paris, was announced in October. His wedding will not take place before June, as Mr. Taft is now in the Harvard Law School.

Mrs. George von L. Meyer and her daughters, the Misses Julia and Alice Meyer, are to establish at their estate in Hamilton until the end of the week. Mr. Meyer, the Secretary of the Navy, joins them to-morrow for the Thanksgiving festivities. His son, George von L. Meyer, Jr., will also be with them.

+ + +

Miss Laura Merriam, sister of Mr. John T. Wheelwright of this city, will make her debut in Washington to-morrow, as Thanksgiving Day is a favorite one for such festivities in Washington. Miss Wheelwright has been in Washington with the Merriams for a fortnight now and will, of course, be present at the teas and reception in her sister's honor.

Washing the Hair.

Doctor Lassar, the famous German professor, says the first step in curing or stopping the falling of hair and toward hair health generally is to keep the scalp clean. Washing is all this would do if it were always sufficient, and that is Hirta Head Wash, the new scientific preparation. It is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerine and Salicylic Acid. This formula is so generally recognized as correct that you are invited to ask any physician you know what he thinks about it. It removes the dirt, dust, dandruff and germs, and under these improved conditions the hair takes on new vigor naturally.

Family's Pride

By ARTHUR ROCHE

TO the grammar school our Harold
Re'ry morning blithely goes,
And at times we old folks marvel
At the many things he knows.
Proud of him? Well, you can gamble!
Still, we fear that something's wrong;
Though he's mighty good at tackling,
On offence he's not so strong.
Willie now is to the high school,
Proudly his class in se'rything.
He's a wonder on the banjo,
And you ought to hear him sing.
If he lands his football team, Henry?
Yet there are times when we dream
Of the joy that it would give us
Proud of him? Well, you can gamble!
Henry? He's an earnest student.
He's in prep school, as you know;
Popular with all his fellows;
Modest, quiet, doesn't blow.
Proud of him? Well, you can gamble!
Still at times it really rubs
Against the grain to know that Henry's
Only halfback on the scrubs.
Johnny? Now at last you're shouting!
Here the others he stones;
Gee, it keeps six doctors busy
Fixing up his broken bones!
Proud of HIM? Well, you can gamble
That our beasts will ne'er be stilled;
Varsity's beat back three seasons,
And he hasn't yet been killed!

From Prison

By HALLIWELL SUTCLIFFE

I thought the town was paved with gold,
I sneered at country ways
And now I hate the sight of fold
Go bleating roundelays.
Oh, God o' mercy, how the streets smell foul and rank!
The clover-fields were sweet and clean when I went country-dressed.
I thought the town was paved with love,
That folk, up North, were slow,
And now I see the dawnlights rise
On Summer hills aglow.
Oh, God o' mercy, how the days are bitter long and long!
The dated days of open fields were never dead to song.
I thought the town was paved with gold,
My housing seemed too quiet,
And now the lark's note rises bold
Oh, God o' mercy, how the lanes are primrose-sweet this Spring!
Dreams change this gold o' city streets for coin of truer ring.

LAND SALES LEAD BROKERS' LISTS TO-DAY

Sales of large and important land tracts figured largely in the realty market to-day.

In Brighton a tract of about 25,000 square feet, at the corner of Commonwealth avenue, Victoria and Chester streets, has been sold by the Institution for Saving in Roxbury and Vicinity to Bernard Steuer, who will improve and develop the property. It is understood he paid seventy-five cents per foot for the land, the rate being $18,500 in all.

Almost the entire length of one side of Templeton street, between Dorchester avenue and Norfolk street, Dorchester, and containing 122,000 square feet, assessed at from ten to thirty cents a foot, has been sold by Isaac N. Cohen to Benjamin F. Bell. This is purchased as an investment. The same buyer has also purchased from the same grantor the block of frame stores and 16,172 square feet of land on Nos. 1,844-1,850 Dorchester avenue, near Thompson street, Dorchester. This latter estate is assessed on a total valuation of $6,100, of which $4,100 is on the land.

In the Back Bay a lot of land just certain to be improved at once has been sold by the Commonwealth avenue property holding syndicate, which has the engaging, long name used by Parker, Quincy, Adams, St. Mary, trustees of the Commonwealth Avenue Land Trust, to Samuel Atkins. Along this property will erect a five-story apartment hotel containing forty suites of from one to three rooms each.

In the West End the four-story brick house and lot at No. 2 Grove street, corner of Myrtle, Francesco Pasquale et ux to Peter Tirelli. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $6,900, of which $2,900 is on the land.

John H. Faver has sold to Joseph A. Gadi his interest in the three-story brick and frame dwelling at No. 2 Fitz Henry terrace, North End. This estate is assessed for a total of $6,000, of which $4,000 is on the land.

In the North End a three-story brick tenement of 5,595 square feet of land, assessed for a total valuation of $4,300, one-half of which is on the land, has been sold by Thomas Mellone to Mary Cecile Merriaie et al, from Giovanni Costanza. The same has been leased for $400.

Title to the frame house and 4,352 square feet of land on the east side of Dudley street, opposite Dudley street station, has been sold from the estate of Mary A. Dudley, trustee, to Wilfred Langlois. The land is assessed for $2,600.

Title to the frame house and 2,000 square feet of land at the corner of Hewitt and Howard streets, Roxbury, containing about 4,000 square feet and taxed for 25 cents a foot.

In Dorchester William A. Dunn has sold to Frederic H. Cowan a frame house and 7,200 square feet of land on Adams street, near Neponset avenue. The estate is assessed on a total valuation of $4,400, of which $1,000 is on the land.

A new frame store and dwelling at the corner of Dudley street and Columbus avenue, containing 4,200 square feet and assessed for its cost a foot, has been sold by J. J. Bottrell et ux to Edward M. Ridley.

Title to four frame houses, not yet taxed and 5,727 square feet of land assessed for $2,600 on the Dudley street corner, Roxbury, have been sold by George W. Eadie to Bessie F. Jewett.

Sylvester R. Paul et ux to Frank Sullivan et al, title to the frame house and 3,826 square feet of land on Ward street, corner of Wood, Roxbury. Ward pays West Roxbury.

$25,000 FOR IRISH PARTY

Another remittance of $5,000 has been cabled to the national trustees of the Irish parliamentary fund by Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, national treasurer of the United Irish League of America.

This makes the fifth instalment of $5,000 each sent to Ireland as the result of T. P. O'Connor's mission, which was opened in the United States only a month ago.

The letter of Mr. Fitzpatrick to the trustees is found to be as follows:

Gentlemen—I am pleased to enclose you to-day an instalment of $5,000 in aid of the Irish parliamentary fund, thus making a total of $25,000 actually remitted since the arrival in this country of O'Connor M. P., in late country. In today's remittance the following cities, viz., Mo., and Providence, R. I., are represented: Lowell, Worcester, Lawrence, The large and enthusiastic audiences everywhere addressed by Mr. O'Connor, his self-sacrifice and the very favorable attention given his mission by our foremost journals, all indicate the sentiment of our people here on the Irish home rule question.

We have some other cities yet to hear from and hope to forward you another instalment in the near future.

On the Very truly yours,

P. B. FITZPATRICK.

STATE STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

$ $ $

It signifies, first, that "the situation is well in hand," to use a trite but correct phrase; that inside balance has been superior to outside demoralization; that sound money counts on the Bourse, and that, always, the time of all fluxes not to liquidate securities is when the street is in a scare.

$ $ $

The market seems, however, to be a buy on any sharp break.

$ $ $

To be real truthful about it, State Street is somewhat blue these days to quite the good from it puts on. The Street does not delight in those surprises that do not add to bad feeling. Even the Federal Court decision in the Standard oil case

$ $ $

The split at the rookeries is heartish. The public is cautious, and to those whose cutty and interest it is to support the market by buying a lot of stocks they do not want because they will have to get em or miss the deal.

$ $ $

The Standard oil decision by the United States Circuit Court seems now purely a technical matter, and every corporation in America can now go ahead without dreading a single mine, mill or mile of railroad. The decision is to stand aside and view for events in the prosperous days of October, and to explain the settlement that overcame those on whom the dust of battle fell thicker.

$ $ $

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey can obey the latest decision by purchasing stock directly of the properties owned by its subsidiaries. It can issue new stock to pay for them, and its stockholders can get money to buy the new stock by receiving dividends from the subsidiary companies the money the subsidiaries receive from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the properties. Give it a few days to explain the settlement that overcame those on whom the dust of battle fell thicker.

$ $ $

Hawley stocks are firm on persistent rumors that B. L. Winchell and B. F. Yoakum of the dark island would become associated with Mr. Hawley in his railroad and steamship company and Mr. Hawley may make it an operating company instead of the holding little one it is now. There is continued talk of the closing little mine. It is constructing the greatest port on the Atlantic coast at Newport News and it would be only fitting to have that port the terminal of a great operating company of the country.

$ $ $

There is continued selling of United States Steel common whenever the stock shows strength, and this is taken as a sign that the pool is unloading. It is said there is much hope for a raise in the dividend rate at the meeting to take place in December. The preferred is well taken care of, and some traders think it will follow around that price before the present selling movement is ended. The book is off for the present.

$ $ $

The new firm of Thompson, Towle & Co., when organized, will occupy the offices on the ground floor of the new Stock Exchange Building, formerly occupied by Pressman, Rollins & Co. Fitzgerald & Co. will be located in the present quarters of Towle & Fitzgerald.

Matthews at His Worst; Disfranchising Boston Voters

The brazen effrontery of Nathan Matthews is unmistakably shown in his selection of a Council ticket. WHAT INFLUENCE was used to make Matthews chairman of the committee to select Council members we do not know. But it was a bad influence. Matthews is the LAST MAN in Boston who should have been chosen for that important position. He is utterly discredited.

Under Plan Two, according to its fervent advocates, THE PEOPLE were to select their Councilmen.

But when Plan Two is carried we find that Nathan Matthews is THE PEOPLE, and the slate he presented last night showed his clever handiwork.

Please remember always that Boston is a Democratic, not a Republican city. Yet this committee comes forward with a slate consisting of five Republicans and four Democrats to UPHOLD a Democratic administration!

What a splendid backing that would be for a Democratic Mayor!

The first eight wards have no representation at all! Dorchester has three representatives and Ward 17 two!

Could folly go a step further? Is there no way to suppress Matthews! IS STORROW TO BE STRANGLED EVEN BEFORE THE CAMPAIGN BEGINS? Popular as Storrow may be, he is not strong enough to carry Matthews on his back.

Of course the new Council ticket will be smashed to pieces on election day.

The Democrats in the wards disfranchised by the Matthews committee will put their own candidates in the field.

Frank A. Goodwin, an honest man, who is badly needed in the Council, but refused a nomination by Matthews because he, Goodwin, exposed Matthews, SHOULD BE ELECTED by a tremendous majority.

Matthews has set himself up to be BOSS of Boston on a big scale. If Matthews can dictate ALL the Council nominations he is well on the way to the place he covets.

But Boston is tired of Bosses. It does not want either Matthews or Fitzgerald for Boss. But if we must have a Boss WE PREFER FITZGERALD TO MATTHEWS!

Alabama to Vote on "Drink"

State Prohibition Will NOT Mean Temperance. It WILL Mean Stagnation

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

The State of Alabama is about to vote, through the State Legislature, on the question of State-wide prohibition.

Prohibition is already fairly well developed in Alabama. The present proposition is to make it constitutionally impossible to sell anything to drink anywhere in the State.

The matter has been discussed widely and intelligently in the Alabama newspapers by business men, clergymen and citizens of all kinds. The matter, of course, is interesting to the entire Union.

The questions of prohibition and of real temperance—QUESTIONS VERY FAR APART—have been important since the beginning of civilization, and they are especially important now.

If prohibition meant real temperance, every sane man would advocate prohibition instantly. Unfortunately, prohibition does not mean temperance. It means the control of a majority of the citizens BY A MINORITY.

It means, as has been proved all over the Union, that the dangerous drinks, highly alcoholic, easily concealed, will be universally substituted for the harmless light drinks such as beer and wine.

In the States where prohibition has been enforced, DRUNKENNESS AND THE SALE OF WHISKEY HAVE INCREASED.

In the United States army, where hypocritical and insincere Congressmen abolished the canteen and established army prohibition, DRUNKENNESS HAS INCREASED 500 PER CENT., desertions have increased greatly.

Alabama legislators and editors should note that in our army, with the abolition of the canteen, which means the light beer and wine for the soldier, there has come the extensive drinking of whiskey, until today THE HOSPITAL AVERAGE OF THE AMERICAN ARMY IS HIGHER THAN THAT OF ANY ARMY IN THE WORLD.

A community, village, city or State that establishes prohibition, tries an experiment that has failed over and over and proved itself over and over a failure and harmful.

Drunkenness has constantly diminished throughout the world, but NOT BECAUSE OF PROHIBITION. Drunkenness has diminished where the sale of mild, truly temperate drinks has been highly developed, and the sale of harmful, highly alcoholic stimulants discouraged.

The community that puts itself under the restriction of prohibition confesses to the world that it has given up the real task of men, which is TO CONTROL THEMSELVES BY THE POWER OF THEIR OWN WILL.

No man denies the sincerity of prohibitionists. There are among them, of course, some that find the trade of professional prohibitionist extremely lucrative. But as a whole the prohibitionists, men and women, are sincere, earnest people, hating drunkenness because of misfortune in their own families or among their friends, but unable to realize that YOU CANNOT REPLACE STRENGTH OF WILL BY STRENGTH OF LAW.

The question of true temperance will be solved eventually in Alabama and elsewhere, not by saying to a man, "You shall not," or treating him as though he were a child to be taken care of by a kind-hearted prohibition minority.

True temperance will come, first of all, from man's WILL POWER, his growing intelligence, conquest of poverty. For poverty causes a thousand times more drunkenness than temptation.

True temperance will come, when the use of the poisonous, highly alcoholic stimulants, discouraged everywhere by public opinion, by law and by high license, shall practically destroy the use of whiskey, leaving light, pure beers, and light, pure wines as the only stimulants used.

Judging the Good That Is in Others

THERE is a natural law, well recognized and defined by men who think, called the Law of Diminishing Returns, sometimes referred to as the Law of Pivotal Points.

A man starts to take systematic exercise, and he finds that his strength increases. He takes more exercise, and keeps on until he gets "stale"—that is, he becomes sore and lame.

He has passed the pivotal point and is getting a diminishing return.

In running a railroad engine a certain amount of coal is required to pull a train of given weight a mile, say at the rate of forty miles an hour. You double the amount of your coal, and simple folks might say you double your speed, but railroad men know better. The double amount of coal will give you only about fifty miles instead of eighty. Increase your coal, and from this on you get a diminishing return.

Another case: Your body requires a certain amount of food—the body is an engine; food is fuel; life is combustion. Better the quality and quantity of your food, and up to a certain point you increase your strength.

Go on increasing your food, and you get disease and death.

Loan money at five per cent, and your investment is reasonably secure and safe. Loan money at ten per cent, and you do not double the returns; on the contrary, you have taken so much risk. Loan money at twenty per cent, and you will probably lose it, for the man who borrows at twenty per cent probably does not intend to pay if he can help it.

The Law of Diminishing Returns was what Oliver Wendell Holmes had in mind when he said, "Because I like a pinch of salt in my soup is no reason I wish to be immersed in brine."

The Law of Diminishing Returns is the natural reduction of the popular fallacy that because a thing is good you cannot get too much of it.

It is this law that Abraham Lincoln had in mind when he said, "I object to that logic which seeks to imply that because I wish to make the negro free, I desire a black woman for a wife."

St. Benedict had spent for years in reactions before it dawned upon him that monasticism carried to a certain point was excellent and fraught with good results, but beyond that it degenerates.

To withdraw from society he felt was a necessity, for the petty and selfish animosities of Rome were revolting. But the religious life did not for him preclude the joys of the intellect. In his unshaven and unshorn condition, wearing garments of goatskin, he dare not go back to his home. So he proceeded to make himself acceptable to decent people. He made a white robe, bathed, shaved off his beard, had his hair cut, and, putting on his garments, went back to his family. The life in the wilderness had improved his health. He had grown to size and strength, and he now, in his own person, proved that a religious recluse was not necessarily unkempt and repulsive.

His people greeted him as one raised from the dead. Crowds followed him wherever he went. He began to preach to them and explained his position.

To purify the monasteries, and carry to them all that was good and beautiful in the classics, was the desire of Benedict. His wish was to reconcile the learning of the past with Christianity, which up to that time had been simply ascetic. It had consisted largely of repression, suppression and a killing out of all spontaneous, happy, natural impulses.

By a sort of divine right he took control of affairs, and insisted that his companions should go to work with him and plant a garden and raise vegetables and fruits instead of depending upon charity or going without.

The man who insists that all folks shall work, be they holy or secular, learned or illiterate, always has a long road to travel. Benedict's companions declared that he was trying to enslave them, and one of them poisoned a posset and substituted it for the simple herb tea that Benedict drank. Being discovered, the thief and his confederates escaped, although Benedict offered to forgive and forget if they would go to work.

Benedict adhered to his new inspiration with a persistency that never relaxed. The voice of God had called to him that he must clear the soil of brambles and plant gardens.

The thorn bush through which he had once rolled his naked body he now cut down and burned.

He divided the day into three parts, eight hours for work, eight hours for study, eight hours for sleep. Then he took one-half hour from each of these divisions for silent prayer and adoration. He argued that good work was a prayer and that one could pray with his heart and lips, even as his hands swung the axe, the sickle or grub hoe. All that Benedict required of others he did himself, and through the daily work he evolved a very strong and sturdy physique.

Benedict had what has been called "builders' genius." He found a great joy in planning, creating and constructing. He had an eye for architecture and landscape gardening. He utilized the materials of old Roman villas to construct Christian churches, and from the same quarry he took stone and built a monastery. A Roman ruin had a lure for him. It meant building possibilities. He stocked the lake with fish and then made catches that ritualized the parable of the loaves and fishes. Only the loaves of Benedict were made from the wheat he himself sowed, and the people he fed were the crowds who came to hear him preach the gospel of himself, practiced the common-sense exercise of head, hand and heart.
